Pinchot Defines Policy in Mine Strike

MEN'S RIGHT TO MEET UPHELD

Governor, However, Orders All Violence Repressed In Letter to Sheriffs

HARRISBURG, June 15.—(AP.)—The policy of the Pinchot administration in the strike area in Western Pennsylvania is to repress violence wherever it occurs, but at the same time to protect the rights guaranteed by the constitution to all citizens.

This statement was contained in a letter sent today from the Governor's office to the sheriffs of Allegheny, Fayette, Greene, Washington and Westmoreland counties. The letter said:

"I am anxious to have you understand exactly the attitude of the state administration in the present strike.

PROTECT RIGHTS

"I have, accordingly, given orders to the state police not only to repress violence whenever it occurs, but also to protect in their rights of peaceful assembly and travel along the public highways any people or groups of people who are behaving themselves quietly and peaceably. This means that state police will not co-operate in any attempt to prevent peaceable marchers, but, on the contrary, will see that so long as such marches are peaceable they are not interfered with.

ASKS CO-OPERATION

"I am writing to ask your vigorous co-operation in applying the policy above outlined. I have seen enough of strike trouble to know that there is no greater provoker of violence than action on the part of the authorities which is not strictly in accordance with the constitution of Pennsylvania and of the United States. These documents guarantee the right of peaceable assembly and petition, and that guarantee applies to striking miners as well as to any citizens."

'Pillar of Fire' Held Supernatural

LONDON, June 15.—(AP.)—A theory that the Biblical "pillar of Fire," which burned atop Mount Sinai, and the lightning-like fire which appeared on the face of the Angel of Resurrection, may have been the manifestation of some supernatural light of which science knows nothing, was advanced today by Sir Ambrose Fleming.

Steel Industry Price Increase Reported Near

Increases in the prices of steel sheets will be announced within a few days, according to reports from Chicago. It is understood the Inland Steel Company will advance quotations on galvanized sheets $2 a ton, and on black sheets $3 a ton for third-quarter delivery.

The American Sheet and Tin Plate Company, subsidiary of the United States Steel Corporation, is expected to follow Inland's action.

The increases in the prices of sheets may be the first step in a general movement to advance quotations on all types of steel. Previous attempts to boost prices since the low levels were reached late in 1930 did not meet with success due to the declining demand for steel and the acute competition developing from low rates of operation.

Officials of the Inland Steel Company and of the United States Steel Corporation today declined to make any comment on the reports that higher prices will be announced.

GALVESTON, Tex., June 15.—(AP.)—Thirty-six young women who seek the title "Miss Universe," having completed an official duty through a parade in bathing suits, turned for recreation to cotton pajamas and a beach luncheon today.

The cotton pajamas were specified for the beach luncheon of the International Pageant of Beauty, which is to be followed tonight by the selection of Miss United States.

Erastie Peretz, the dark-skinned titian-haired Miss Rumania, suffered a fall from her float with the breaking of a support in the parade yesterday, but escaped injury.

Miss Peretz, five feet seven and one-fourth inches, is the tallest girl competing for the beauty crown, to be awarded tomorrow night. Blue-eyed blondes predominate among the girls, the average of whom weighs 119 pounds.

STONES HURLED AT TAXI AS 65 CRUISE CITY

Crowd Dispersed by Police; Men Deserting Strike at Wheels, Firm Tells Walsh

Sixty-five taxicabs made their appearance on downtown streets this afternoon under heavy police guard. All are Yellow cabs.

All were manned, company officials told the police, by drivers who participated in the walkout of 950 men Saturday.

Except for the stoning of one cab, there was no disorder and the escort of police which accompanied the machines to hotels and railroad stations made but one arrest. No one was injured.

CROWDS DISPERSED

Several groups of men, believed to be strikers, who lined Grant street, scene of riotous demonstrations in the 1930 strike, were dispersed by the motorcycle escort.

The first cabs left the garage at 1 p. m. They were escorted by four police automobile cruisers, each carrying four patrolmen armed with riot clubs and tear gas equipment. Other cabs followed at the rate of two a minute until 65 were in operation.

Two cabs soon returned to the garage, one due to motor trouble and the other to obtain a forgotten cushion. A third returned an hour later with its windshield shattered.

PROTECTION ASSURED

Plans for the attempt to break the strike were completed by Paul M. Houston, of the Parmelee Transportation Company, this morning. He conferred with Police Supt. Peter P. Walsh and was assured the bureau would furnish protection.

Houston said 125 cabs would be placed in operation.

No attempt was made to resume operations from the Melwood avenue garage, where Green cabs are housed.

Houston told Supt. Walsh no strike-breakers would be used. He said the cabs would be manned by former employes who had quit the ranks of the strikers.

ZEP ABANDONS WILKINS POLE RENDEZVOUS

International News Service.

FRIEDRICHSHAFEN, June 15.—Abandonment of the plan for a rendezvous at the North Pole between the Graf Zeppelin and the submarine Nautilus was announced today by Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Zeppelin.

The mishap to the motors of Sir Hubert Wilkins' submarine which overtook the vessel in mid-Atlantic yesterday has made it impossible for the two vessels to keep their appointment in the Arcticregions, Dr. Eckener said.

An independent flight to the Pole by the Graf Zeppelin, he said, still may be made.

Dr. Eckener said:

"It is most regrettable, but the rendezvous with Sir Hubert Wilkins is off for this year.

"Even if the Nautilus is repaired, Wilkins cannot make the Pole in time. We are ready to start, but it all depends on whether an independent flight is wanted."

Dr. Eckener said the Graf weathered a very violent thunderstorm during its flight Sunday without discomfort to its passengers, who conducted a musical program at the height of the storm.

U. S. Battleship Towing Submarine to Ireland

NEW YORK, June 15.—(INS.)—Taken in tow by the U. S. S. Wyoming after being disabled in mid-Atlantic by engine trouble, the polar submarine Nautilus, commanded by Sir Hubert Wilkins, was proceeding today to Cobh (Queenstown), Ireland, 1,000 miles away.

The Wyoming, one of four ships which raced to the rescue of the undersea craft yesterday as it tossed helplessly in a heavy sea approximately 500 miles northeast of the Azores, and 1,000 miles west of the French coast, succeeded in getting an 8-inch manila hawser aboard the submarine after hours of strenuous labor.

KLINE AIDE FIRST TO BE CALLED FOR TESTIMONY

Judge Moore Warns Against Tampering, Urges Rigid Inquiry Into Food Charges

Frank L. Swaney, secretary to Mayor Charles H. Kline, was the first witness called before the grand jury today as it started investigating charges of contract and purchasing irregularities in the City Supplies Bureau.

Judge Moore

The first day of the investigation, it was indicated, would be taken over entirely by the perusal of city records and with questioning of representatives of Main & Co., the firm which made an audit of the bureau's affairs at the request of the Citizens' Committee.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park, when the jury took its noon recess, said:

"Inspection of the records will require all of this afternoon, perhaps longer."

Judge George V. Moore, in delivering his charge to the 22 jurors who will hear the testimony, warned them against possible attempts at embracery, the legal term for jury fixing. He told them to report any such attempts at once and drastic steps would be taken by the court. Failure to report such an incident, he said, would involve the juror as well as the "fixer."

JURORS GET RECORDS

Swaney, Robert Clark, city clerk; Samuel Todd, chief clerk in the controller's office, and John Schilpp, deputy controller, all carried bulky packages of papers and records into the jury room. None of them stayed more than a few minutes.

After Todd left, M. C. Conick and A. F. Burke, Main & Co. audit directors, were informed they were to be the next witnesses, and 14 others, waiting their call, were dismissed until tomorrow.

Beauty Home, Will Battle For Theater Man's Estate

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger, St. Louis beauty, who was acquitted last month in France of the murder of her husband, Fred G. Nixon-Nirdlinger, wealthy Philadelphia theater owner, came home on the liner Roma today and sadly declared:

"Sometimes I am sorry I am beautiful, especially when I realize all the misfortune I have had from it."

Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger, whose defense was that she shot her husband as he started to choke her while accusing her of accepting the attentions of other men, was accompanied today by her mother, her two children and their nurse.

She said she would go immediately to Philadelphia to confer with her attorneys on the disposition of her husband's estate. Under the Pennsylvania law, she said, she is entitled to a dower right, since she was acquitted of his murder.

If she should fail to gain any portion of her husband's estate, however, she will have to go to work—possibly on the stage—she said, and until the estate is settled, she will have very little money to live on. She came back second class on the liner.

Glorified Girls to Open Follies Here Tonight

Every seat in the house has been sold and only a few remain for the rest of the week, Harry Brown, manager of the Nixon, said this morning.

Sixty-five girls—the most beautiful of all the 23 Follies, Ziegfeld says—went through their dress rehearsal last night. It was a long grind, starting at 2 p. m. yesterday and ending at 5:30 this morning.

All through the night Ziegfeld and his assistants labored, slashing and polishing the show for its first performance.

In addition to the "glorified girls," Ziegfeld has gathered one of the finest casts the Follies have ever offered.

In it are Ruth Etting, Helen Morgan, Pearl Osgood, Harry Richman, Jack Pearl, Gladys Glad, wife of Mark Hellinger, Sun-Telegraph columnist, Reri, the South Sea dancer, Mitzi Mayfair, another dancer discovered by Gus Edwards and touted by him as a second Marilyn Miller, and a score of other theatrical "names."

Edwards, famous for his discovery of youthful talent, arrived in town today to view the first appearance of his young protege.

Tonight's opening will have all the glamor of a Hollywood premiere or a New York opening. Hundreds of seats, Manager Brown said, have been sold to society figures and celebrities. The ceremonies preceding the opening will be broadcast over Station KQV, starting at 8 o'clock.

SPEECH TO BEAR ON DOMINANT 1932 ISSUE

By GEORGE E. HOLMES
International News Service.

ABOARD PRESIDENT HOOVER'S TRAIN En Route to Indianapolis, June 15.—President Hoover was off today on a four-day tour of the Middle West which, while ostensibly non-political in character, nevertheless has political aspects that will be narrowly watched by those who are already looking 19 months ahead to the presidential campaign of 1932.

In the four days that Mr. Hoover will spend traversing states as far west as Illinois he will make three speeches. One of these, in Indianapolis tonight at the banquet of the Indiana Republican Editorial Association is distinctly of political nature. He proposes to deal with the economic depression an issue which party leaders privately agree will go far toward deciding next years election. Mr. Hoover plans to discuss it in considerable detail and to defend his administration against the attacks launched upon his policies.

HARDING CEREMONY

The other two speeches are of somewhat different character. Tomorrow, in Marion, O., he will make the long-deferred dedication of the memorial erected to Warren G. Harding. Former President Calvin Coolidge will participate with Mr. Hoover in the exercises.

On Wednesday President Hoover will retrace his route through Indiana to Springfield, Ill., there to rededicate the remodeled tomb of Abraham Lincoln.

CHEERED IN W. VA.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., June 15.—(AP.)—A crowd of several thousand persons greeted President Hoover here today as his special train passed through en route to Indianapolis.

In less than a minute after the train came to a stop, the President appeared on the rear platform and a mighty cheer went up in his honor. During the five minutes the train remained here Mr. Hoover remained on the platform almost continuously. He greeted West Virginia notables who boarded the train here to accompany the President to Huntington and made a brief talk from the platform.

Among those boarding the President's special train here were Gov. Conley, Senator Henry D. Hatfield, and the West Virginia members of the Republican National Committee. As the train was pulling out the President shook hands with former Gov. Howard M. Gore, now state commissioner of agriculture.

400 SHIP DEAD HUNTED

eight bodies have been recovered. It is possible that others escaped death and have not yet reported their safety, but the toll of the disaster was estimated with as much accuracy as possible at 442 dead.

There was an admittedly slim chance that a final check would reveal that many of the passengers had left the boat before the storm struck. It was barely possible also that some of those aboard may have reached the shore in safety between Pointe de St. Gildas and the Loire River. There can be no definite check until the families of those aboard the steamer have reported to the police.

The St. Philibert was a flimsy 100-foot river steamer. She put out from Nantes yesterday afternoon with a crowd of picnickers on an outing run by a labor organization, steaming down the river to St. Nazaire and across the bay to the island of Noirmoutier, not far to the south.

There most of the passengers went ashore. The weather was threatening when the steamer started on the return trip and at first it was reported that a hundred or more had decided not to go back by boat. Later this was proved erroneous and it was said that less than 30 remained behind.

Off Pointe de St. Gildas the storm broke with sudden fury. The passengers stampeded to the leeward side, threw the boat off an even keel and she turned over.

ference with immigration authorities. The sheriff said:

"Every person taken into custody in Allegheny County's strike area will be investigated thoroughly. I believe that most of the agitation is caused by aliens. They will be turned over to Federal authorities."

The sheriff attended a conference in Washington, Pa., yesterday of Western Pennsylvania sheriffs who met with Maj. Adams. Officers from Washington, Westmoreland, Fayette and Greene counties attended.

Gov. Pinchot's letter, outlining the attitude of the state administration in the strike, was read and discussed, and the question arose as to when a demonstration became disorderly. Maj. Adams, carrying the Governor's authority to explain the difference between peaceable and disorderly assembly, told the sheriffs that in the event of the strikers disobeying or refusing to heed the instructions of the sheriff, the gathering was to be considered disorderly and police were within their rights to break it up.

The hearing of the Consolidated Coal Company's petition for an injunction against the National Miners Union and Vincent Kemenavich, secretary, was held before Judge H. H. Rowand, who took the case under advisement. A number of miners testified, several of them declaring they had been threatened for not joining the walkout. Charles F. Hosfer, president of the concern, also testified as to interference by the strikers. He said only a small percentage of his men were on strike and that they had submitted no grievance. Kemenavich, called as a witness, admitted the National Miners' Union adhered to the program, principles and statutes of the Red Internationale of Labor Unions, but denied the organization had any direct connection with communism.

Rebel strikers injected a new problem into the strike by picketing and keeping all but a few of the miners out of the Creighton mine, which has entered into a temporary agreement with the United Mine Workers.

The pickets, voicing allegiance to the National Miners Union, admitted Communistic group and left-wing opponent of the United Mine Workers, marched on the mine at daybreak under close police scrutiny, but they were not molested. Women were not permitted to picket and one woman was arrested by Allegheny County deputy sheriffs when, it is alleged, she threw a stone. She is Julie Shutack, 48, of Creighton Hollow.

FOSTER OUSTED BY W. VA. CITY

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., June 15.—(AP.)—William Z. Foster, nationally-known Communist, was escorted from Moundsville by deputy sheriffs, city police and a group of 50 citizens last night after he attempted to speak from the court house steps in the interests of the Northern West Virginia coal miners' strike.

After a day of meetings in the Eastern Ohio strike area, Foster came here with officials of the National Miners' Union.

When the party arrived at the court house, where a crowd of 100 miners and 400 other persons had assembled, police informed the visitors that they were to leave town at once.

Foster and the others, who included Frank Borich, secretary of the N. M. U., and Frank Setich and Robert Sivert, also officials of that union, climbed into their automobiles and drove out of the city. They were accompanied to the city limits by police and others.

CLOTHES OF 350 MINERS BURNED

ST. CLAIRSVILLE, O., June 15.—Burning of the working clothes of 350 miners when the washhouse of the Rail and River Coal Company's Big Run Mine, 10 miles from Bellaire, was destroyed by fire this morning prevented the operation of that mine today. The washhouse, a huge frame structure where miners bathed and changed clothing, was burned early this morning, a few hours before strikers were to have placed pickets about the mine. No attempt was made to operate.

The Provident Mine of the Clarkson Coal Company at St. Clairsville, resumed operations today after a two-day shutdown. One hundred and fifty miners were conveyed to the mine in buses guarded by deputy sheriffs. Two hundred pickets were on duty. Two pickets were arrested, charged with interfering with officers.

THRILLS MARK RECORD FLIGHT FROM COAST

Passenger Lauds Taylor's Fast Hop to Pittsburgh As Feat of Great Pilot

J. S. McGill, a passenger in the Pittsburgh Airways plane brought from Los Angeles to Pittsburgh in the record time of 14 hours for use on the Pittsburgh-New York run, has written the following account of his trip for the Sun-Telegraph.

By J. S. McGILL.

The story of our record breaking flight back to Pittsburgh is chiefly a story of a great pilot flying the fastest passenger plane in the world.

Stepping into the cockpit of a ship on which the paint was scarcely dry, "Skippy" Taylor lifted us 10,000 feet into the air above Los Angeles and literally vaulted over the mountains, spurning the pass and ignoring the clouds that choked it.

We looked down a thousand feet on Mount Wilson observatory and another thousand feet on a limitless sea of dense white clouds, pierced by the jagged peaks of the Sierra Madres.

SURPRISED AT SPEED

We sailed the winds of the desert in the purple light of a rising sun, swooping down from our lofty path at Kingman and then at Albuquerque in such rapid succession that we found ourselves struggling to realize the progress we had made. We were actually outflying our imaginations.

Somewhat shaken by a storm encountered as we left New Mexico, we revived ourselves with a sandwich and a bottle of milk at Oklahoma City. We took off for St. Louis, landed, took on gas and started off at dark.

Flying at 200 miles an hour over unknown country in the dark is rather a grotesque experience. We in the dark cabin passed moments in bitter debate over the identity of the towns we crossed. Whether we were right or wrong, we finally struck the lighted beacons and knew Taylor's course was true.

COLUMBUS—PITTSBURGH

Under us at last spread a blanket of gleaming diamonds, Columbus, only 178 miles from home. Five hours by train, 50 minutes by fast plane.

Then the glow of Pittsburgh, unlike that of any other city at night. Not merely a sheet of twinkling lights, but a mighty red glow that fills the valleys and floods the very heavens.

Flashing out of the sky, Skippy" circled Bettis Field on one wing at 200 miles an hour and showed the gleaming white breast of his new bird to the faithful who had watched for our arrival until 2 a. m. swooping down in a landing so soft that we passengers scarcely knew we had touched the earth. A typical Taylor landing.

Morale Cracks as Dragnet Spreads for 68 Aides Indicted With Racket Czar

International News Service.

CHICAGO, June 15.—Government agents, deputies and police today were prying into the dark corners of Chicago's underworld searching for the 68 men indicted with Al Capone in a gigantic liquor conspiracy.

Warrants for the 68 men named were turned over to Edward King, chief deputy United States marshal, and the final drive on the greatest gangster organization in the country was under way.

GANG IN CHAOS

According to word coming from the underworld, the Capone organization is in chaos, its coffers diminished by fines, bonds and replacements for raided breweries, its morale broken by knowledge that trusted lieutenants may be government undercover-men in disguise.

"Scarface Al" himself was to appear tomorrow in Federal Court to be arraigned on indictments charging him with failure to pay income taxes amounting to more than $200,000 on a net income of more than $1,000,000 for the years 1924-29. Government agents, on the basis of the indictments returned by the federal grand jury, estimate that he gross receipts of the beer business alone of his gang amounted to $200,000,000 in 10 years.

WILL NOT PLEAD GUILTY

While reports were heard that Capone would plead guilty, hoping to arrange for a prison term of about five years, his lawyer, William F. Waugh, made a definite statement that he would not plead guilty to the income tax evasion action.

Authorities pointed out that if Capone pleaded guilty to the conspiracy charge he would leave his co-defendants in the lurch. Some of them might then rush forward with pleas of guilty to save themselves and in so doing disclose information about murders which have marked the bootlegging business since its inception.

Tired by Swimming River, Man Says Foes Beat Him

If John Blasko, 22, of 8 Bloom street, Woods Run, had not been tired from a swim across the Ohio River from McKees Rocks to Woods Run he would have beaten off the three men who attacked him as he waded from the water, he said when arraigned in North Side Police Court yesterday.

Police testified they found Blasko at Cass avenue and Porter street, parading in his underwear and covered with blood. Provided with a pair of trousers, he was taken to St. John's Hospital for treatment and then arrested for disorderly conduct.

His story was this: He had attended a wedding in McKees Rocks. He missed the last ferry. Undaunted he disrobed and leaving his clothes on the river bank, swam for Woods Run. When he walked from the water he met a trio of enemies. The three took advantage of his tired condition and gave him a severe beating. He told the magistrate:

"If I hadn't been tired, I could have beat them."

He was discharged.

Coolidge Advocates More Advertising to Aid Trade

NORTHAMPTON, Mass., June 15.

To the Editor of the Sun-Telegraph:

The current national convention of advertising men indicates what a great business in itself scientific publicity has become. A few years ago advertising was a mere incident of merchandising which was given little thought, now it is one of the cornerstones of commerce.

Mr. Coolidge

Advertising has gained its important and permanent place by establishing the principle that it must tell the truth.

Formerly regarded as irresponsible trade talk, intended mostly to challenge the attention, it has become a responsible guarantee designed to convince the understanding. Unless advertising meets that requirement it is now considered a costly failure. In the efforts made to eliminate waste in our commercial life none has been more important than the elimination of the waste of misrepresentation in advertising.

With honest merchandise, conscientiously produced, truthfully advertised and efficiently marketed the future of our country will be secure. We have the productive capacity the raw materials and the capital necessary for profitable business. Only the demand is lacking. It is the function of advertising to create the demand. More emphasis is required on that essential fact. The economic benefit of balanced consumption within the means of the purchaser is not yet fully understood. Better publicity is the answer.

POLICE CHECK NAMES FOUND ON MISSIVES

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, June 15. — Love letters written to Starr Faithfull during the months immediately preceding her death are in the hands of police, and are of more importance in the efforts to solve the mystery of her murder than the frank pages of her diary previously discovered.

This was learned yesterday. It was the love letters that Inspector Harold R. King, of Nassau County, found last Friday and carried by airplane to District Attorney Elvin N. Edwards.

Some of the letters were written only a few days before Starr disappeared June 5. A check of the names, initials and pet names signed to these letters with the names and initials mentioned in the diary indicated an entirely new set of men had come into the part-mad girl's life since she wrote the last entry in her diary late in 1929.

Another person, a man, came into the baffling case yesterday. This is Henry Goldstein, 32, held in West Side Jail since June 10 when he was arraigned as a fugitive from Los Angeles.

FAMILY QUIZZED

Goldstein informed authorities he had vital information bearing on Starr Faithfull's death. Although detectives were skeptical when they went to see him, they seemed impressed after interviewing him.

Last night King was at the Faithfull home at 12 St. Luke's place, interviewing Starr's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley E. Faithfull, and her younger sister, Elizabeth.

King and his men were noncommittal about the contents of Starr's love letters, but it was learned that these are the papers seized in the Faithfull apartment Friday night. The same night, the dead girl's stepfather revealed that he still held documents of Starr's and he declared police never would get them. Evidently these are the letters that police found in Faithfull's absence.

An official who saw the letters declared:

"They are much more important than the diary is, or could be. They are all quite recent, and they give us a list of acquaintances and friends of the dead girl of whose existence we had heretofore been ignorant.

"They are from both men and women, but mostly from men, as determined by handwriting as well as the initials and pet names signed to them."

PETERS TALKS

Andrews J. Peters, former mayor of Boston, came forward with an admission that "a member of his family" had given money to the Faithfull family.

Peters, mayor of Boston at the time of the police strike, and former United States representative from Massachusetts, previously had declared that, while he knew Starr Faithfull and other members of the family, he had not seen or heard of them for five years.

Today he recalled that money had been cabled to the Faithfulls in London. He said:

"Some money was sent over to London to them by a member of my family. It was a family matter, and I don't like to discuss it. I don't remember what the amount was, but it was not large, and I had forgotten about it.

"Many people have asked me about this case, but I know nothing whatever about it, even in the remotest degree. It is a family matter, and I am very sorry for them."

LINK PRISONER IN GIRL'S DEATH

POTTSVILLE, Pa., June 15.—(AP.)—Possibility that the companion of Thelma Woods, whose body was found last week in a water-filled quarry near Lima, O., is one of the men held here pending investigation of a rumored plot to slay two local men, was suggested by local police.

Three men and a woman, whose names police would not give, were arrested Saturday after officers received an anonymous tip by telephone that they were planning to kill two local mean, alleged beer racketeers, whose names the police also withheld.

Shortly after the arrest of the four, police received a second anonymous call, saying one of the men was Earl Truesdale, whom Lima police have sought in connection with the death of Miss Woods. The local officers called Lima, and, they said, found one of the men's description correspond to that of Truesdale.

WORK STOPPED ON SUB WRECK

CHEFOO, China, June 15.—(AP.)—Salvage operations on the sunken British submarine Poseidon were abandoned today on instructions from the admiralty. It was reported the vessel was covered with 12 feet of mud. All units engaged in the operations returned to the harbor.

Memorial services were held ashore yesterday for the 20 British sailors who lost their lives in the sinking of the submarine after a collision in the Yellow Sea on Tuesday.

All available British submarines and a number of other vessels assembled near the spot where the craft sank and the mourners included the 35 survivors of the ill-fated submarine. The services on shore included a ceremonial parade.

SPAIN DEPORTS CATHOLIC PRIMATE

Cardinal Seized on Return From Parley With Pope, Taken by Auto to France

International News Service.

MADRID, June 15.—Cardinal Pedro Segura Y Saenz, archbishop of Toledo and primate of Spain, was deported today by the Republican government.

The cardinal, who was returning after a visit to Pope Pius XI in Rome regarding recent anti-Catholic depredations in Spain, was halted on the outskirts of Gaudalajara last night with his two brothers and placed under detention in a Paulist monastery.

Under police guard, he left Guadalajara this afternoon in a government automobile for the French frontier. Minister of the Interior Maura, announcing the Cardinal's departure, declined to reveal the charges against him.

The Spanish prelate evoked the wrath of the government when he issued an appeal on May 6 to the populace to elect deputies to the constitutional assembly who would uphold the church.

The Cardinal had been protected during the night and this morning from mobs who streamed through the street shouting:

Alfonso 'Envoy-at-Large' For Spanish Republic

LONDON, June 15. — (INS.) — Former King Alfonso who left his throne a little more than two months ago in the face of nation-wide threats of revolution, has been made, in effect, unofficial ambassador-at-large for Spain, the newspaper Sunday Referee learned today.

Alfonso was given no formal appointment or portfolio. President Niceto Alcala Zamora, writing the former monarch, merely expressed the hope that Alfonso would continue to "use your good influence in behalf of Spain in foreign countries."

The letter to Alfonso was in answer to an humble offer by the former monarch to return to his country as a private citizen and work for the best interest of the republican government, should that body desire it.

This offer was in response to President Zamora's recent appeal urging all loyal Spaniards to return to their native country and assist the new government in its task of bringing order out of chaos.

RUTH BANK LOAN REPUDIATED

UNIONTOWN, Pa., June 15.—Attorney H. George May, of Connellsville, for 15 years a director of the defunct Title and Trust Company of Western Pennsylvania, testifying in the trial of President L. F. Ruth, for violation of the banking laws, insisted the Waynesburg loan was never submitted to the discount committee or the board of directors. He was a member of the board in 1927 when the mortgage was first issued.

Jurors in the case were excused over Sunday, when all members agreed not to discuss the case.

If Ruth goes on the witness stand in his own behalf, his case will not be concluded until Thursday. If he does not take the stand a verdict is expected at least one day before.

District Attorney J. B. Adams said that if the Ruth case is concluded by Wednesday the case of R. C. Bledsoe, former county detective, charged with the murder of Elmer Younkin will be started immediately. If not the trial may go over to the September term.

Freidman revived a short time later and, while staggering along the street, met a policeman. He was removed to the Montefiore Hospital, where it was discovered he had severe lacerations on the scalp and forehead. He was detained at the hospital.

line at dawn, the Nautilus resumed its journey in tow of the battleship. Messages received here from the scene stated that the strong wind had abated somewhat and that the heavy sea had subsided.

TOW LINE ABOARD

That the tow line had been taken aboard the submarine was revealed in a message intercepted by the naval communications station here at midnight. All aboard the submarine are safe, the message stated.

The Nautilus left Provincetown, Mass., 11 days ago and had covered approximately two-thirds of her voyage to England when disabled by engine trouble yesterday morning. The call for aid flashed by the Nautilus was answered by four vessels—the United States battleships Wyoming and Arkansas, the President Roosevelt, of the United States line, and the U. S. Shipping Board Tanker, Independence Hall.

The heavy sea frustrated the efforts of the Independence Hall to take the helpless submarine in tow, but the storm center had passed when the Wyoming and Arkansas arrived on the scene some hours later.

Street car traffic was tied up for periods of 15 minutes to an hour. Sections of Second avenue, between Brady street and Hazelwood avenue, were flooded and resulted in a traffic halt of an hour. Numerous other sections in the city were flooded.

Chimneys of the homes of William Cartwright, at 1428 Pennsylvania avenue, and W. E. Cole, at 63 Park Entrance drive, Mt. Lebanon, were struck by lightning. Another bolt struck a telephone pole at Westwood avenue and Albert street, Mt. Washington.

POLES SET AFIRE

Firemen were called out to extinguish blazes on poles at Greenfield avenue and Lydia street and in the rear of 4035 Liberty avenue. Short circuits were blamed for fires in a Western avenue street car, at West Ohio street and Sherman avenue, and in the automobile of J. L. Shipley, of 829 Wood street, Wilkinsburg, at Fifth avenue and Hooper street.

The noted singer and her son, Ferdinand Schumann-Heink, sued Carewe for alleged breach of contract. The case was taken under advisement.

PINCHOT KILLS BILL TO SPEED DIVORCES

Strickler Measure Would Open Way to 'Fraud,' Governor's Message Says

HARRISBURG, June 14.—(AP.)—Gov. Pinchot has vetoed the Strickler divorce bill on the ground that this state is not yet ready "to enter into competition with other states in the granting of speedy divorces."

In a veto message, the Governor said the measure, sponsored by Representative Strickler, Lancaster, would permit service by advertisement immediately upon the return of the original subpena and that the only purpose of this amendment was to shorten the time within which divorces may be obtained. The Governor wrote:

"The result would be to open a way to great fraud. Pennsylvania is not yet ready to enter into competition with other states in the granting of speedy divorces. Every effort should be made to obtain personal service on the respondent in divorce cases. The law has wisely required the issue of two writs before personal service may be dispensed with. The proposed change would be improper and unnecessary."

29 OTHERS VETOED

In addition to this veto, the Governor's office today made public announcement of the Governor's veto of 29 other measures, 17 of which were vetoed because they were duplications of measures already approved by him.

In vetoing these bills the Governor brought to 104 the total of bills he has acted on since the close of the Legislature on May 28, leaving him with approximately 400 measures to act on by June 27.

Another divorce measure vetoed by the Governor was that of Senator Brandt, Allegheny, permitting courts to revoke, annul or amend alimony orders in divorce cases after an investigation.

DRY MEASURES

The Governor vetoed two measures dealing with enforcement of the prohibition laws, both of which were introduced by Representative Sowers, Philadelphia. One bill would require aldermen, justices of the peace and magistrates to conduct a hearing to establish probable cause before issuing a search warrant. The Governor said:

"This legislation is unnecessary. It is probable that this bill was aimed at the repeal of section 8 of the prohibition enforcement act of 1923, which pertains to the issuance of search warrants, and has withstood the test of judicial attack and should not be disturbed. The rights and property of the people are adequately protected under the existing law."

The other Sowers measure related to the service of search warrants and was vetoed for the same reasons.

By Mark Hellinger

THE MAIN CHARACTER in today's story shall be known only as Rose. She is short and dumpy and homely. Her nose is long and her eyes are dull. Her hair is not expertly clipped and her one gown is badly stained. But she is a strange character. And for that reason, I tell her story. To the small world that is Broadway, Rose is not well known. But to the detectives in a precinct that is very close to Times Square, Rose is a familiar figure.

Every Sunday afternoon for several months Rose has opened the door of the detectives' room in that precinct. The scene is always the same. Her tone is always the same. The result is always the same. But Rose keeps coming. For she is searching for someone . . .

* * *

It is a Sunday afternoon. About 3:30. Rose stands in the doorway of that room and looks particularly stolid and businesslike.

"Have you found Mr. X yet?" asks Rose in a timid voice.

"Nope," replies one detective. And then he turns to his coworkers.

"Have you seen Mr. X, Bert?" he asks solemnly. "Or you, Bill? Or you, Jim?"

"Wait a minute, Rose," cries one officer. "Aren't you going to act for us?"

Rose stops. She turns about. And there is a new expression on her face. The ghost of a smile curls her lips. Her eyes have a bit of a glow. She reminds one of a little girl gazing upon a new doll.

And she begins to act. Very badly. She twists her face into various shapes. Emotions they are usually called. Love. Passion. Hate. And so on. It is her interpretation of acting.

But the detectives do not laugh. They do not even smile. She might be Ethel Barrymore judging by the attention they give her. And, as she continues to move her face this way and that, one detective whispers her story . . .

"She's from Jersey," he says. "Paterson, I think. Was a waitress over there in a hash joint. Went to the movies a lot, I guess, and suddenly got a bug in her bean that she ought to be a screen star.

"Where she got it from I don't know, but she had about a thousand bucks salted away when some guy introduced her to this fellow she calls Mr. X. He told her he was a big producer from Hollywood and she fell like a ton of bricks.

"The rest is the same old story. She went to the bank, drew out the jack and came over to New York. And Mr. X. became her movie instructor.

"You can see for yourself what he taught her. He kept telling her that she should practice, and practice, and pretty soon she'd be a Gloria Swanson or a Greta Garbo.

"Well, I guess you can just about imagine the rest. When the money was gone, so was Mr. X.

"She's busted now. And she's back in Jersey slinging the hash. But she keeps on looking for Mr. X. Not to have him punished or anything, you know. Just to have him finish her education as a movie star.

"She's a little bit off, I guess. It's sad. Damn sad. That's why we ask her to act for us. It makes her happy . . ."

* * *

Rose is through now. She has gone through her entire performance. And she stands in the center of the floor, obviously waiting for some comment from her audience. Immediately there are cries from the detectives.

"Good girl!" says one.

"Atta baby!" shouts another.

"Great stuff, Rose!" says a third.

She smiles gratefully, and turns to leave. As she reaches the door, she turns again. She is no longer the actress registering Love, And Passion, And Hate. She is back in her natural character. She is Rose—seeking Mr. X. She speaks very softly.

"Listen," she says pleadingly, "you'll find Mr. X next week for me, won't you? I gotta find him, you know. I just gotta find him. You'll never know how much it means to me to find him. Won't you promise to do your best?"

There is no response from the detectives. The girl's eyes are dull again. She lowers her head and stands there for a few seconds. Then she turns slowly and walks from the room.

For a moment there is only deep silence. Every one is watching the door as it closes slowly after Rose. Two of the detectives shrug their shoulders and turn to their work. The third detective still remains silent. I look at him. He is evidently in deep thought. After a lapse of perhaps a minute, he muses aloud:

IGNORE POLITICS, JUDGE SAYS IN CHARGING GRAND JURY

'Willfulness' Is Issue If Irregular Buying Charges Are Proved

[The ... grand jury ... herewith ... and the ...

You are now ready to give your attention more fully to the particular matter originally called to the court's attention by District Attorney ...

As the ... petition for a special ... body, involves ... administrative or ministerial acts of an officer ... of the City of Pittsburgh, it will be necessary for the court to instruct you as to the legal obligation of municipal officers and to define what acts by municipal officers of such municipality would constitute a criminal offense for which they could and should be brought to trial before a petit or trial jury.

Outlines Law

The municipal corporation known as the City of Pittsburgh must function insofar as we are here concerned, as to the purchase of supplies, in the following manner:

"The Department of Supplies shall be under the charge of a director, who shall be the head thereof.

"The Mayor shall nominate, and, by and with the advice and consent of the Council, appoint the director of the Department of Supplies.

"The Department of Supplies shall have the direction, control and administration of the purchase and supply of all personal property required in the conduct of the business of the city. All other departments shall obtain such personal property by requisition upon the Department of Supplies, and not by purchase direct.

"The manner and form of such requisition may be prescribed by ordinance, or, in default thereof, by standing rule of the Department of Supplies.

"All appropriations of money for the purchase and supply of such personal property shall be made to, and be expended by, the Department of Supplies; and all contracts for the purchase of such personal property shall be made and entered into by and with the Mayor and Director of the Department of Supplies, in the manner required by law.

"All contracts relating to city affairs shall be let to the lowest responsible bidder after reasonable notice.

"When the contract exceeds $500 such notice shall be by advertisement; when less than that amount, or when purchased at public sale, advertisement may be dispensed with.

Mayor Responsible

"Every contract shall be let by the Mayor and head of the proper department.

"All bids shall be filed with the City Controller and shall be opened publicly by the Mayor and head of the proper department, or either of them, at a time and place to be designated in the advertisement or notice to bidders, and the figures stated to those present.

"No contract shall be let until councils have passed an ordinance providing for the letting of the same by the Mayor and head of the proper department.

"No contracts shall be entered into or executed directly by the councils or any committee thereof.

"In no case shall a contract for any material, machinery or process which is patented, or the supply of which is controlled by one person or company, be let with the contract for work or for other material or machinery."

In construing the statutory requirement that the city of Pittsburgh through "the Department of Supplies" must let all contracts to the lowest responsible bidder after reasonable notice, the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania, the highest judicial body in the commonwealth, has held as follows:

"The statute requires that contracts be awarded to the lowest responsible bidder and the courts hold it is for the municipal authorities in the exercise of sound discretion to determine who is such."

Duty of Officials

As to who is "the lowest responsible bidder" the Supreme Court has declared that responsible officials are "bound to investigate, and, if the lowest bidder measures up to the law's requirements as a responsible party, the officials cannot capriciously award the contract to another."

This discretion as to determining the lowest responsible bidder is required to constitute a sound discretion, honestly and deliberately determined after reasonable research and inquiry and under a system of open bidding.

The specifications on which bids are to be asked must be such as to afford reasonable opportunity for competition, that is, there must be a common standard covering the product involved, open to all bidders.

The responsible municipal officer or officers must investigate the bidders to learn their financial standing, reputation, experience, resources, facilities, judgment and efficiency.

Low Bid Mandatory

The Supreme Court has said further that where municipal authorities have determined who is the lowest responsible bidder their discretion there ends, and the contract if awarded must be given to the one whose bid is lowest, though there is but a slight difference in amount between him and another bidder, whom the municipal authorities or officials would like to favor.

The law makes this requirement because the money to be expended is public money, a trust fund, and, in matters of this kind, the law recognizes no right in a municipal officer to spend any public money, howevery small, except for work done by the lowest responsible bidder," or for supplies from the lowest responsible bidder.

So far, we have instructed you as to the civil responsibility of Pittsburgh municipal officers in regard to the letting of contracts for municipal supplies.

I now direct your attention particularly to the law as it embraces criminal acts of municipal authorities. What has been said as to civil responsibility of these officials is deemed necessary ground work for your understanding of the criminal law concerning which your special inquiry is to be made.

Criminal If Wilful

Where a municipal officer fails to meet his obligations as to city supplies by non-compliance with the legal requirements we have outlined, if that official misconduct amounts to wilful misbehavior in office, then the conduct of such municipal authority or authorities, in the wilful doing of an unlawful act, constitutes a criminal act.

And for any such act, so determined in your deliberate judgment from sufficient evidence submitted to you to justify the conviction of the party or parties accused in the absence of any other proof, more particularly in the absence of proof from any likely defendant or defendants, you should make a presentment, as a ground work for criminal prosecution against the person or persons involved, through bills of indictment which the court will direct the district attorney to prepare and submit to you, in the event you make a presentment charging criminal acts.

You are to remember, that the fact of any act on the part of any municipal authority or authorities, to establish such action as of the criminal type properly requiring the accused to be put on trial, is that that official or those officials, from the evidence adduced before your legal body, and in the absence of any other proof, has wilfully done an unlawful official act.

You are to note that:

"Public officers with mandatory duties to perform under the law are presumed to know the law, and if they wilfully do an act which is in violation of that mandatory duty, it becomes an indictable offense.

"The acts here forbidden, that is, the letting of contracts in any other manner than that provided by law, are not necessarily criminal, but become so if done wilfully or with evil intent."

You are further to remember that:

"The law requiring a proposed contract for municipal supplies to cost in excess of $500 to be advertised and given to the lowest responsible bidder is mandatory."

Cites High Court

On this same legal proposition our Superior Court has further said:

"Our courts have uniformly held that it is the legislative intent where work is to be done for a municipality" (or inferentially where supplies are to be purchased for a municipality in the classification of the City of Pittsburgh) "there should be free and competitive bidding so that fair prices may be procured and collusion to the detriment of the city be prevented. Private negotiations and favoritism are always to be avoided as they invariably result in disaster to the municipality."

Our Supreme Court has further declared as well stated, the declaration that:

"The infirmities of human nature, the natural disposition to favor friends, personal and political, and the various motives which influence public officers to depart from a strict and rigid adherence to the obligations that rest upon them as representing the public, make it important that they should be held strictly within the limits of the powers conferred upon them."

Invokes Common Law

If criminal prosecution is to be instituted against any present or past municipal authorities, by your legal body in the proper exercise of its functions, such prosecution must involve a charge of wilful misconduct, which we in this Commonwealth define as a common law offense.

For, "it is a general principle that where a statute gives a privilege, and one wilfully violates such privilege, the common law will punish such violation."

"A priori," our Superior Court has said: "a violation of a mandatory duty, would be a higher offense and, therefore, punishable."

"For mere error of judgment, however, no indictment lies, unless for an act made specifically indictable by statute irrespective of intent."

The highest authority upon the question as to what is a common-law offense is Blackstone, and Blackstone in defining a common-law offense said:

"The last species of offenses which especially affect the Commonwealth are those against the public policy or economy."

And he explained this couplet to embrace the due regulation and domestic order of the kingdom, in his day—the municipality, here and in our day.

Defines Misdemeanor

From all the foregoing would seem to follow that any City of Pittsburgh official who wilfully neglects to perform any duty which he is bound by statute to perform, commits a misdemeanor at common law.

The word "wilful," which is very vital in this connection, has been defined in Webster's international dictionary as "self-determined, voluntary, intentional."

The charges brought to the attention of the court have had very wide publicity in the public press and we take judicial notice of the fact that two audits of the accounts and of the records of the Department of Supplies of the city of Pittsburgh have been made and copies of the reports from the same are now in the files of the district attorney.

If these charges are true and arise to the dignity of criminal acts as we have defined the same, and, of course, as the facts from the prosecution side alone are presented to you, then those involved unhesitatingly should be put to trial.

Public office in this republic has always been, is now and always must be a public trust, and any dishonest public official is rightly an object of public scorn. Of course, under our system of jurisprudence every person is presumed to be innocent until the contrary appears by sufficient legal proof.

Bans Politics

This special inquiry is to be engaged in solely for the purpose of bringing the guilty, if any such there be, to punishment.

It is also your responsibility to guard the innocent from injury, and you will therefore carefully weigh the testimony and present no one unless in your deliberate judgment the evidence before you is sufficient, in the absence of any other proof, to justify the conviction of the party or parties accused.

All good citizens should be fearless foes of evil, and of course these charges cannot be permitted to go unnoticed. However, they should not be considered under any circumstances, from the standpoint of political expediency.

You are to hew to the line of a serious legal inquiry.

If illegal acts of city officials are shown, and indicated by sufficient prosecution evidence to have been wilful, as heretofore suggested, certainly such presumed offenders must be put on trial.

Or if persons dealing with officials of the City of Pittsburgh, more particularly with officials connected with the Department of Supplies of the said City of Pittsburgh, have violated the penal statutes of this commonwealth, for instance as to bribery or false pretense, certainly such presumed offenders must be put upon trial.

Protects Guiltless

Should the charges made prove untrue, a costly injury will then have been done the reputation of the public official or officials or persons involved and in the latter event it would be your duty to quickly absolve those under suspicion of the cloud of suspicion resting upon them as a result of this widely published charge.

We now direct that you, for the time being, set aside all the other public business there is for your consideration and that you immediately enter upon a thorough investigation of these serious charges. You are to investigate these charges and make a "true presentment."

Before you, you may call anyone in Allegheny County, which constitutes the jurisdiction of this court, and under oath you may examine any witness called before your legal body.

Witnesses Warned

Should any person called, refuse to testify without legal excuse, we assure you any such recalcitrant witness will be charged with contempt of court, will be accorded a hearing thereon and prompt adjudication will follow any such charge and hearing.

In your investigation you will have behind you the full majesty of the law.

Because an advisedly long-extended audit investigation has preceded this inquiry and because Attorney Earl F. Reed, a member of the Allegheny County bar, has been intimately associated with and constantly informed of the details of one division of this audit, District Attorney Park has notified the court that he has appointed the said Earl F. Reed as an Assistant District Attorney, for the purpose of conducting this investigation before your legal body.

I, therefore, present Mr. Reed for your acquaintanceship and advise that he, District Attorney Park himself, or any other assistant whom he may detail to assist in this investigation, will be authorized to function with your body as a representative, or representatives, of the District Attorney's office.

Bear in mind that the District Attorney or his designated assistant is privileged to aid you in the examination of witnesses and to give you general instruction and whatever assistance you may require.

From the court, we assure you, you may at any time ask for proper advise and assistance.

Upon concluding your inquiry you must, or at anytime during the course thereof you may, reduce your conclusions to writing and return them to court in the form of a presentment.

In all your deliberations you are to remember the injunction and obligation of the oath which each of you took when you began your service as grand jurors, bearing in mind that in the performance of your duty you are bound to secrecy for the protection of the interests of the public.

You must make no premature disclosures of your findings and you must protect the parties involved from any disclosure of charges which you might eventually determine to ignore in your findings.

Allow no one to attempt to influence you in disposing of the matters before you. To attempt any such act would constitute a serious offense against the penal law of this Commonwealth, and conviction of any such charge could work a severe penalty upon such offender.

You are further to remember that a grand juror who corruptly betrays his or her sworn duty, is also subject to penal punishment.

SID SMITH GIVES 'HOLDUP PARTY'

CHICAGO, June 15.—(AP.)—Two Tuxedo-clad bandits were sought today in the search for the $50,000 worth of jewelry stolen from Sidney Smith, noted cartoonist, and his wife. Police said an arrest was imminent.

Homeward-bound from a South Side country club ball early yesterday, the Smiths' sedan was boarded by the bandits as it stopped for a traffic signal. One bandit guarded the chauffeur. The other forced the creator of "Andy Gump" and his wife to surrender all their jewelry, save only Mrs. Smith's wedding ring.

The cartoonist rounded up a group of friends for a house party after the holdup, "to celebrate the occasion," as he put it.

"IT SAVED MY INSURANCE FROM LAPSING"

A year and a half ago, a young business man who owns a store on the Northside, opened an Insurance Premium Payment account at The Colonial. He has $35,000 of life insurance and he deposits about $75 a month here to meet the premiums. Several days ago, he came to The Colonial and said:

"That account is about the only thing which has kept me from losing my insurance in the last six months.

"Our business was affected by the depression; we had to give up our store location and take one with a lower rental; the mortgage on our home came due and had to be renewed . . . But through all this, my insurance has given me no trouble at all. We made a point of putting that $75 away each month; the premiums proved much easier to meet; and my family has the full $35,000 of protection, no matter what happens to me."

Under current business conditions, thousands of people are finding The Colonial's plan the best possible method of keeping life insurance in force. Send for the folder describing it. There is no charge of any kind under this plan. On the contrary, it enables you to reduce your premiums and to earn interest on your deposits. Fill in the coupon below.

GRAND JURORS BEGIN BUYING INQUIRY

Judge Warns Against Any Tampering, Insists Upon Sweeping Probe of Charges

Burke was expected to run well into tomorrow morning.

Among the witnesses dismissed for the day were:

Dr. J. F. Hammers, superintendent of the City Home at Mayview.

E. L. Atkinson, of the Lang Motor Truck Company.

J. C. Cronin, of the L. H. Parke Company, who made many sales to the city on contracts higher than those of other bidders.

PARKE OFFICIAL

John M. Irwin, secretary of the Parke Company.

Joseph McDonough, chief clerk in the Department of Welfare.

C. G. Kanne, vice president of the Sterling Motor Truck Company.

J. F. Sweeney, manager of the International Truck Company.

A. D. Miller III, treasuer of the A. D. Miller Oil Company.

Henry Hirsch, of the Machinery and Supply Company.

A. L. Brahm, meat dealer.

Edward Kress, Jr., of 1030 East Ohio street.

Bert N. Doty, clerk in the supplies bureau, and John Vachette, manager of the new closed Plaza restaurant, in which Bertram L. Succop, discharged head of the bureau, once owned a part interest, were not dismissed although it did not seem probable that they would be called until tomorrow.

KERR APPEARS

Controller James P. Kerr, although he is not under subpena, appeared before the jury, during an intermission in its questioning of Conick. It was believed he was asked to identify certain documents then under discussion by the jury.

In his charge Judge Moore outlined the laws governing city purchases and explain the action which could be taken if they found city officials had been guilty of "wilful misbehavior in office."

He said that all appropriations of money for the purchase of supplies and all contracts shall be made by the Mayor and director of the Department of Supplies.

Judge Moore, two weeks ago, granted the petition of District Attorney Andrew T. Park calling for a grand jury investigation of the charge. This means that the court will ask the jurors to make a presentment giving the names of those to be indicted, if the facts presented to them appear to be substantiated. The court would then ask District Attorney Park to prepare indictments. If this procedure is followed it will take the same course as the councilmanic graft investigation in 1910.

Present indications are that it will require the grand jury three weeks to make the investigation.

PARK DIRECTING

District Attorney Park will direct the inquiry.

One of the first official acts in the proceeding was the swearing in of Attorney Earl F. Reed, counsel for the Citizens' Committee, as an assistant district attorney, who has prepared the case for the commonwealth and is familiar with all of the details.

Assistant District Attorneys George F. P. Langfitt, W. H. Colvin, Harry R. Phillips and Ralph Hunter also will take part in the deliberations.

Twenty-three jurors reported for duty this morning, but one of them, Mrs. Francis Lantz, of Sewickley, was excused when she presented a doctor's certificate to Judge Moore.

Mrs. Julia M. Heim, of 2705 Norwood avenue, excused from earlier sessions of the jury because she said her young child needed her care, was on hand today. She was sworn in and said that her baby will be brought to the jury room at each meal time until the investigation is ended.

JUDGE'S CHARGE HIGHLIGHTS

The test is to be whether an official "has wilfully done an unlawful official act." The acts (alleged) are not necessarily criminal, but become so if done wilfully or with evil intent.

Wilful has been defined as self-determined, voluntary, intentional.

It would seem that any city official who wilfully neglects any duty he is bound to perform commits a misdemeanor at common law.

If these charges (by newspapers and auditors) are true and are criminal as defined, then those involved unhesitatingly should be put to trial.

Any dishonest public official is rightly an object of public scorn.

It is also the grand jury's responsibility to guard the innocent from injury.

These charges should not be considered from the standpoint of political expediency.

The jury is to hew to the line of serious legal inquiry.

The grand jury may call and examine any one in Allegheny County.

Any recalcitrant witness will be charged with contempt of court.

Mrs. Nixon-Nirdlinger, Freed, Sums Up Past, Hopes for Future

This is the last installment of Charlotte Nixon-Nirdlinger's own story of the events leading up to the dramatic and tragic death of her husband.

In previous chapters she told of her marriage to the wealthy Philadelphia theatre magnate after a whirlwind courtship; their subsequent divorce and remarriage; the jealous quarrels that led to his disappearance, the automobile accident that changed his nature and the renewal of quarrels ending in the fatal struggle in the villa at Nice.

By CHARLOTTE NIXON-NIRDLINGER

(Copyright, 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

NICE.

The days that followed the death of Frey were days of horror and torture. Writing these chapters of my life, I am occupied and my mind is kept normal. To my mother I have told the whole story. It gave me the courage to go on.

It gave me peace and made my prison cell less gloomy. It will let mother see the realities of my life, the seamy side of the last few years, the things that tormented me until they became more than flesh and blood could bear. She can see now all the sordid things that tore at my heart, with only the sunshine in my babies' faces to give me happiness. And she will understand.

The first week in prison was terrible. There was another woman with me. She was a nice person, I thought, although she would not tell me what she had done. There was only one narrow cot in the cell, so we took turns at sleeping on the floor and on the cot. One was just as hard as the other.

Perhaps this was my punishment. For even though I shot in self-defense, even though I pulled the trigger of that gun when I read my doom in Fred's mad eyes, even though I felt the terrible clutch of his two hands upon my throat—yet if I had not bought that gun, as he had bought one before, my children's father would now be alive. And I would be dead. Maybe that would have been better. I wonder?

Friends Aid

To make my stay in jail more cheerful I heard from many friends. I received many letters of sympathy and understanding even from strangers I never had the pleasure of meeting. After all this, hypocrites and snobs can never hurt me. Many Americans were among those who came to my aid. Sydney Chaplin testified on my behalf at the inquiry. My mother, too, was always at hand.

I dreaded the trial, yet I realized it was an ordeal that could not be evaded. I need not tell what went on during the trial. I had the horrible feeling I would be convicted. It was not a sense of guilt, but the suspense. Yet everybody else was confident of my acquittal. Maitre Cassin and Jose Bonifacio, my two lawyers, were kind and helpful and reassuring.

The trial itself was fortunately swift. The people who rushed forward to testify to my good character and to reveal the nature of my husband were so kind. I can never forget them.

It was generous of Mr. Charles G. Loeb, who was one of Fred's closest friends, to testify that he believed Mr. Nixon-Nirdlinger was afflicted with a disease of jealousy.

Pity for Fred

Yet I do not want to think of that any more. I do not want to think ill of Fred. He was the victim of a disease and was to be pitied rather than hated. I never hated him—only feared him. Now he is dead and I want to think the best of him, to remember only the good. May his soul rest in peace, as it never seemed to do on this earth.

As for myself I shall go on. I shall return to America and face life anew. I have lived more in my 25 years than most people do in 60. During my hour of need my friends stood by me. That is something to cherish always. I have been given a new vision of life.

I must think only of my children now. I must bring them up so that they will live happy lives. I must guard their young minds until they have grown to a true comprehension of the world. I must see that when Junior is a young man and Charlotte is a young woman they will not face a hostile world. I must see that they have beautiful ideals—yet do not look upon life with a distorted vision of beauty. They must learn in time that the world is a place of mixed emotions, of troubles constantly pitted against pleasures, of sorrow interwined with joy.

I must continue to be to them, above all else, what I have striven to be before, a good mother. I must help them to understand life without having to undergo terrible experiences such as I have known.

Doing all this, I can feel that my life has not been destroyed and that the horrors I have experienced have not been in vain.

THE END.

DENIES POLICE BOAT BOMBING

Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph 15c Practical Pattern
Smart Frock in Sizes 38 to 48
Pattern 2161

By ANNE ADAMS

Here's a charming frock embodying details to slenderize the larger figure. The deep curved neckline and seaming of the skirt flare have decided slimming effects most welcome to mature women, yet the lines are youthful and graceful. The sleeves are short for summer comfort, and smartly edged with double flares to make the arms appear more slender. The pert tie, pulled thru a slash in the bodice, lends an attractive trim below the dainty vestee of lace or net. Pattern 2161 makes up well in georgette, voile, lawn, swiss or chiffon.

Obtainable only in sizes 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 38 requires 4½ yards of 39 inch fabric. Yardage for every size, and simple, exact instructions are given. No dressmaking experience is necessary to make this model with our pattern.

SLAYER OF WIFE PLEADS GUILTY

Paul Crissman, 30, pleaded guilty to murder when arraigned before visiting Judge Norman T. Bosse, of Somerset county, today, for the killing of his wife, Minnie, 25, in their apartment at 923 Irwin avenue, April 8.

Crissman slashed the throat of his wife in a quarrel when he learned that she was going to take their two children, Mary, 3, and Paul, 2, and leave for the home of a sister in Indianapolis.

Crissman also slashed his own throat. The children were present when the tragedy occurred, and the younger child's neck was slightly dislocated apparently in the struggle.

Taking of testimony to determine the degree of murder was begun, with Assistant District Attorney Barney Cohen prosecuting and Attorney Samuel Sarraf defending Crissman.

Ignatz Renczewicz, 45, of 1242 Fourth street, Natrona, went on trial for the death of John Cirnoch, 42, of 233 Fourth street, West Natrona, May 5. "I'll get you what you want any time at all."

When patrolmen attempted to board her car she threw a can of moonshine at Richman, he claimed at a hearing, and started her car. She crashed into the radio car, damaging a fender, police said.

Wayside Speakeasy Folding Bar Raided

The law caught up with Eldredre last night—behind a billboard. He was dispensing his wares over a folding bar, with 44 pints of moonshine in a suitcase underneath.

Over Niagara Falls

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

It cannot be the popular cost of breathing nor the congestion in the high-rent districts.

Looking through the bunghole gives you a new idea of things.

There's no money in it any more. Your souvenir postcards get all wet. Red Hill has made the trip several times, breathing through the bunghole, and getting plenty of water with his air.

Which destroys the chemical formula of H_2O. When you get too much H with your O you register bankruptcy by drowning.

Hill has given up the racket in disgust. It has all the financial returns of stuffing a billiard ball into your mouth. Or going over the Grand Canyon on an ironing board.

The public is going in for bigger things like dance marathons, rocking chair championships or hanging from trees by your toes.

We crave the spectacular now. A Shipwreck Kelly who will perch on a flagpole all summer autographing coconuts and dropping them on the heads of his admirers.

That brings the fan mail. You can get it with a megaphone that will amplify your moaning when the pain has reached the crooning stage. You can achieve bales of first-class mail by swimming the English Channel with both hands tied to your press agent. You've got to do something big and clean this summer and we don't mean washing an elephant.

Those two Swiss scientists started things by looping 10 miles in a balloon. They were hermetically sealed in an aluminum gondola and were rescued by an intrepid mountaineer armed with credentials and a can opener. You can top this by hiding in a hollow tree all summer and kicking a bear in the face in the fall.

Sir Hubert Wilkins is going good by sailing to the North Pole under the ice. We were going to do that ourselves, but we must allow Hubert to get the glory because he thought of it first.

REPLY OF POPE GIVEN ITALY

ROME, June 15.—(AP.)—The latest reply of Pope Pius XI in the controversy with the Italian government was delivered to Foreign Minister Dino Grandi this morning by messenger.

Believed to be moderate in tone, the document constitutes an answer to Premier Mussolini's statement, being the first real exchange on the merits of the case. The message is understood to raise the point of alleged government interference in the sphere of the church.

Meanwhile the Italian government has authorized the reopening of certain clubs for Catholic laymen beginning with eight in Turin which were told yesterday they might resume their activities. The order applies for the moment only to "oratorizs," which are large clubs in which priests give young people religious and cultural instruction.

To smokers who are hard-to-convince

WE LIKE nothing better than to induce hard-to-convince smokers to switch to Camels for just one day.

For we know that after they have made a real test, it will be mighty hard to lure them away from this famous brand.

It's not easy to smoke parched-dry cigarettes once you have known the delights of perfectly conditioned Camels.

After inhaling the cool, soft fragrance of the Camel Blend of choice Turkish and mellow Domestic tobaccos protected by the Humidor Pack, your throat protests against the bite and sting and harsh hotness that comes from crumbly, dry tobacco.

No matter where you pick them up, in any land, in any climate, Camels are the same fresh, factory-prime cigarettes.

This is no mere advertising story. It is a recitation of fact that has made the whole country conscious of a new superiority in Camels.

If you are hard to convince, won't you switch to Camels for just one day? Then leave them—if you can.

Tune in CAMEL QUARTER HOUR featuring Morton Downey and Tony Wons
Columbia Broadcasting System—every night except Sunday

CAMELS

NO CIGARETTY AFTER-TASTE

● Don't remove the moisture-proof Cellophane from your package of Camels after you open it. The Humidor Pack is protection against sweat, dust and germs. It delivers fresh Camels and keeps them right until you smoke the last one.

CLARA, BLONDE, GOES TO RANCH

LOS ANGELES, June 15.—(AP.)—Clara Bow, her red hair dyed blonde, sought communion with nature today, after seven hectic years in the movies. She looks forward to a month or so in the great open spaces, cantering after cattle. After that she expects to return to Hollywood, full of her former vigor and ready to talk about reappearing in the talkies.

Just before the Bow party—the actress, her friends, Rex Bell and Duke, her great dane, in one car, and her nurse, cook and chauffeur trailing in another—left yesterday for Bell's ranch at Nipton, Cal., she granted the first interview since she suffered a nervous breakdown, more than a month ago. She said:

"I had my hair dyed to disguise myself while I went to the dentist, and the trick worked great. Very few people recognized me.

"I'll not get married before I'm 26, and that's a little over a year away. If I do get married, Rex will certainly be the man."

SLAIN MEXICAN YOUTHS BURIED

MORELIA, Mexico, June 15.—(AP.)—The funeral of the two students Elimio Cortes Rubio and Manuel Garcia Gomez, who were slain last week by a deputy sheriff near Ardmore, Okla., was held late yesterday. The Rev. Father Antonio Gonzalez delivered the funeral oration.

No bitterness against the United States was shown at the grave or anywhere along the line of march of the cortege.

The bodies were laid side by side on a tropical wooded knoll in the city's cemetery and Gov. Lazaro Cardenas sent word the state would honor the student's memory with a monument.

Three thousand persons marched in the funeral cortege and an additional thousand waited at the graves. Eight thousand persons passed before the caskets as the bodies lay in state at the Garcia Gomez home.

JOB DECREASE SHOWN IN MAY

PHILADELPHIA, June 15.—(AP.)—The monthly report on employment and wages by the Federal Reserve Bank, of Philadelphia, said Pennsylvania factory employment dropped more than 2 per cent and total wage payments and hours worked declined over 6 per cent from April to May. The report says:

"While a small decline in employment in May is typical, the drop from April to May last year also was 2 per cent in employment and 4 per cent in wage payments. The metal products and transportation equipment groups experienced the largest declines in wages, although all groups showed decreases with the exception of food products."

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(AP.)—The Labor Department announced today that approximately 42,000 less employes were on industrial payrolls at the end of May than in April. Statistics showed 46,031 establishments in 15 major industrial groups had 4,721,032 persons on their payrolls in May and paid them $115,617,936. This was a decrease of nine-tenths of 1 per cent in both men and payrolls.

TREASURY GETS OVER BILLION

WASHINGTON, June 15.—(INS.)—Income tax payments, remittances on foreign debts and the proceeds of a $821,000,000 issue of 3⅛ per cent bonds brought $1,222,000,000 to the badly-pinched United States treasury today.

At the same time more than $689,000,000 was paid out, $90,000,000 as interest on the public debt, and $589,000,000 to retire two blocks of 2⅞ and 1¾ per cent certificates.

The income tax remittances, due in the mails today, probably will amount to $290,000,000 as compared with $526,000,000 in June, 1930, before the economic storm had a chance to disturb the 10-years' easy government financial routine since 1920.

It appears now that the total income taxes for the year ending June 30 would total about $1,864,000,000 against $2,400,000,000 in the 1930 fiscal year.

AMUSEMENT NEWS :-: All Ready for The New 'Follies' :-: THEATER NOTES :-: Ziegfeld Premiere Tonight Is Talk of the Town

Follies Opening Tonight To Make Pittsburgh Theatrical History

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

"Glorifying the American Girl," which formerly was an annual practice of Florenz Ziegfeld in his yearly editions of "The Follies," will have a glorious revival in the Nixon tonight, when "Follies of 1931," first of these greatest of all revues in several seasons, will have its world premiere. Of course, we all know Ziegfeld's name is sufficient assurance that there will be feasts for the eye in the most ravishing feminine beauty, in the tantalizing scenic effects that this master of staging arranges as a background for his revue and in the dazzling richness of the costuming coloring of the settings and brilliance of illumination.

That is the enchantment of a Ziegfeld show the frame in which he places the best talent available for this type of entertainment.

ZIEGFELD A "BEAR"

Mr. Ziegfeld refuses to be extremely optimistic about his new "Follies." Interviewed in the Nixon this afternoon he gave an impression that he had absorbed some of the technique of a football coach emitting "bear stories" on the eve of the big game. The interview went like this:

"Go right ahead, Mr. Ziegfeld, speak freely: you are in the hands of friends. Tell all about why you think the new 'Follies' is the best ever."

"I can't do that—I'm going to leave it to Pittsburgh to tell me what kind of a show I've got. That's why I brought it here. Pittsburgh—the Nixon Theater—holds the money record in box office receipts for any 'Follies.' That covers the top figures of about 40 theaters in which the 'Follies' have been shown.

"My new show is distinctively a girl show. I expect to show the people some of the most beautiful girls in the world, to give them what I think is some really fine music, and, of course, some laughs.

PICK OF 10,000 GIRLS

"I saw 10,000 girls. From them I selected 80, which number I further reduced to 48. No 'Follies' ever had more than 48 girls, 32 in the chorus and 16 show girls. But the dismissed girls came back imploring me to give them jobs—it is the ambition of every girl to get a job in the 'Follies.' So I relented and took back enough to bring the number of girls up to 70. Each one, during the course of the revue, wears about $5,000 worth of costumes.

"I also have a group of 20 men—all of whom have played leading parts in shows. These will do the real singing, I think. The 'Chant of the Elephant,' in my opinion, is excellent music, worthy of being sung in any concert hall—Carnegie Music Hall or any place where high class music is sung."

"How about the comedy—does that run to 'blackouts'?"

5½-HOUR SHOW

"No, I'm off 'blackouts.' Our comedy is in the form of sketches. One is entirely in French, with real French actors. The scene is the Grand Guignol, in Paris. Two Americans want to see a play there, so they take along a couple of interpreters to find out what it is all about. It is a novelty—and the height of sophistication—but I don't know how it will go.

"I don't know how any of our stuff will go tonight. Our show will be five-and-a-half hours long. What doesn't go, of course, will have to be pruned. Perhaps some that does appeal will have to be deleted."

The cast which Mr. Ziegfeld has assembled, and in which he puts his faith to meet the test here, is made up of enough stars to stock a dozen separate shows. All are famed in their own particular lines of endeavor.

HELEN MORGAN TO SING

Ruth Etting, another feminine star is well known to the public. Radio and motion pictures have added to her fame.

Harry Richman, suave Harry, has been popular on the stage and screen. In pictures he won distinct fame in "Putting on the Ritz."

Mr. Ziegfeld has also engaged Reri, a full-blooded native South Sea Islander, as one of the principals.

PEARL OSGOOD, TOO

Pearl Osgood, scintillating little epitome of vim and vivacity, will give a good account of herself, we may be sure. This charming little comedienne appeared in "Flying High" and scored a big success. Miss Osgood is one of the stars of the new "Follies" who is expected to have a especial appeal with audiences in New York, where she is a big favorite, though petite in stature.

Dorothy Doll, "Miss Universe," 1930 winner of the International Pageant of Pulchritude at Galveston, Tex., is another in the cast. Miss Doll is the winner also of a cup given her by the City of New Orleans, a $2,000 cash prize and a plaque.

Mitzi Mayfair, the "17-year-old Marilyn Miller," is an extraordinary young dancer whose ability Gus Edwards discovered when she was only 13 years of age.

GLADYS GLAD RETURNS

After retirement from the stage which lasted two years, Gladys Glad, selected by Mr. Ziegfeld and many artists as the most beautiful woman in the world, will return to the stage tonight. Her husband, Mark Hellinger, wrote many of the sketches for the new Follies.

Jack Pearl, one of our funniest German dialect comedians, may be expected to sputter broken English all over the stage.

All in all, it looks like Pittsburgh's "biggest night" in theatrical history.

Big Time

Mary Lange is one Pittsburgh girl who has hit the big time right. She's in Ziegfeld's "Follies," which will be premiering in the Nixon tonight.

Plays, Players and By-Play

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Perhaps to show that he even draws upon the legitimate stage for talent, Florenz Ziegfeld engaged Viola Tree and Ethel Borden for his "Follies" opening tonight in th' Nix. Miss Tree, English comedienne, is a daughter of Sir Beerbohm Tree. Miss Borden is Mrs. Harriman Russell in private life and is a sister of Mrs. J. Borden Harriman. They recently supported Miss Billie Burke in "The Truth Game." During its run they appeared together in a series of sketches at a private luncheon given by Mrs. Vincent Astor. If this is a scoop on our society department, it will just have to make the best of it.

* * *

As those feminine gagsters in the Penn stage presentation, Maude Hilton and Connie Almy, view life in Chicago:

Miss Hilton—"I was in Chicago last week and one of the gangsters took me for a walk!"

Miss Almy—"You don't mean walk, Maud. Why everybody knows that gangsters take people for a 'ride'."

* * *

Virginia Dale, petite blonde leading woman with Capt. Menke's show boat troupers at Montrose, played a summer stock engagement last season in Youngstown with the Lillian Desmond players. Miss Desmond conducted a stock company in East Liberty a couple of winters ago and also was seen as a guest member of the Sharp company.

Things I Knew All Along

(But which you didn't know till now!)

That Texas Guinan was really barred from France because of a personal feud between the Franch President and Harry Pilcer, Guinan's partner in her venture. Pilcer and the Prez up to recently were the duckiest "chums." After the quarrel, the President evened matters, with Tex as target.

That all French hoosegows have barrooms. It's the law!

That in the "Donovan's Kid" movie, the action of which is laid in 1916, there is a scene of Broadway showing the Roxy, built in 1927.

That the girls in the Fanchon & Marco troupes must keep moving fast to keep audiences from finding out if they are good-looking.

That there is a huge reward offered to anyone who can tell exactly where waiters hide the water when you are thirsty.

That if you put a match to the cellophane of your cigar wrapper, the smoke will only go inside the wrapper.

That Maurice Muller Park, at Fordham Road and Creston Ave., in New York, hasn't a tree or a single blade of grass in it.

That Key West (in Florida) is the only town in the United States where no frost has been recorded—except for actors, of course.

That when a girl says "No!" she means "Yes," unless she's your wife.

That a newspaper in New York State must be in existence for three years before it may publish legal notices.

That nobody knows what became of Karl K. Kitchen who used to cover Broadway for the Ev'g World. Oh well, here today—

That Variety, which used to come out on Fridays, switched to Thursdays, then to Wednesdays, then to Tuesday nights and then back to Wednesdays, is now coming out on Tuesdays.
They're crazy over there.

That it doesn't take a heap o' livin' in a place to call it home, as Edgar Guest would have you believe. It takes a heap of expenses.

That the best taxicabs in which to pet are the "gyp" types of cabs because the light inside never lights.

That the typographical sign in the bottom row of your standard typewriter keyboard (you know the key that gives you) is something very few office workers understand. They'll say "Why, er, er, it's the dividing sign between the numerator and the denominator in fractions!"
Well, it isn't. It is the Shilling Mark.

That the chump who wrote that story in that mag announcing that Capone was killed two years ago (and that the Capone of today is a double) is wearing a mask to hide his sheepish look.
Well, he ought to!

That if you are planning to produce a show in New York City your chances of enticing customers is better on a west-bound street.

That the street lamps in town are turned on at 8:40 p. m.

That nearly every girl who paints and powders has to.

That cattle will not eat grass after sheep have walked on it.

That the trick in throwing the boomerang is not to aim for the object you wish to hit. (Would you rather I make funny faces?)

That "y" is a complete word and the shortest noun in the English language. (Oh, yeh-yah? Well, look it up then, wiseguy!)

That there is no sure cure for the swelled-head.

That California cherries keep so well they reach New York in better condition than cherries grown in New York State.

That Logan spent many years perfecting the Loganberry, which is a cross between the blackberry and raspberry. Of all ambitions!

That experts who read your handwriting would have you believe that you are a hypocrite if your S's have no tails.
And they kill time!
That auto tires pick up more nails on rainy days.

That Arkansas has the only diamond mine in No. America.

That when it is Saturday on the Alaskan side of Bering Strait it is Sunday on the Asian side—fifty miles away.

That there really are people who think that if your eyebrows grow over your nose (between the orbs) it means you're deceitful.

That there is no authenticated portrait or bust of Cleopatra.

That the female of the speakies is livelier than the male.

That a night club master of ceremonies is a person who really believes he is as pretty as his picture in the lobby.

YOUTHFULNESS KEYNOTE OF THE LITTLE PLAIN FROCK

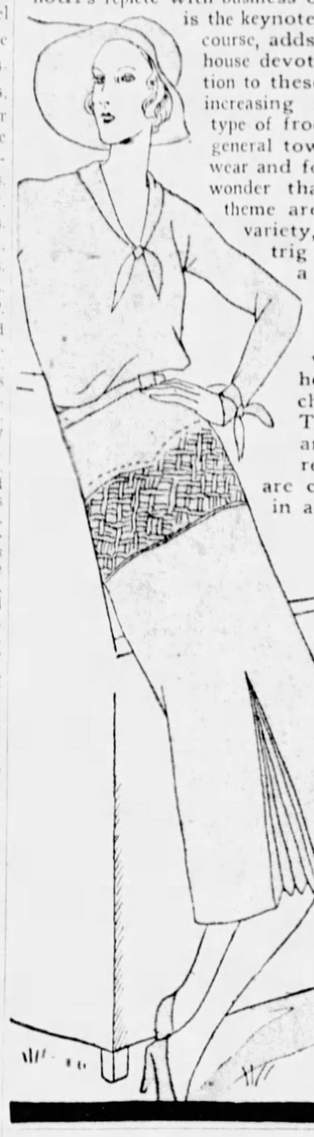
Paris Bureau, Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

PARIS, June 15.—The little frock continues to loom large on the sartorial horizon. Although every well planned and well stocked wardrobe includes several afternoon frocks and ensembles, most of us find that we get the most wear and use out of the simple little frock that is at home for all but formal occasions. Such frocks are very much in demand by every type of woman, be her hours replete with business or social obligations. Youthfulness is the keynote of the simple frock, and this, of course, adds to its popularity. Nearly every house devotes a large portion of its collection to these useful little frocks that are of increasing importance this season. This type of frock is ideal for walking and for general town wear, as well as for country wear and for use en route, and so it is no wonder that so many variations of this theme are to be had. But despite the variety, the essential simplicity and trig look of the frock is never for a moment obscured, at least. Not by a smart designer.



* * *

MAGGY ROUFF makes the very smart little frock sketched here. It is of black and white checked wool and silk material. The collar, jabot and sleeve bands are of white pique and the belt is red and black leather. Flat pockets are concealed in the close bands sets in at the top of the skirt. Two deep and wide box pleats are placed at the front of the skirt.

* * *

Picture this:

Flo Ziegfeld hopes to televise his glorified American girl.

Television will revive interest in the theater.

Helen Morgan Writes

While we were interviewing Mr. Ziegfeld, Helen Morgan came along, and we decided that she would make a good radio editor today. Helen believes in "the pause that refreshes," and between scenes may be observed sipping a well-known beverage through a straw as she saunters along backstage.

"Hello, Helen Morgan," ventured we, like we had known her since the day she first sat on a piano.

"Hello, yourself," was the comeback, and you can bet your Liberty Bonds that, with this encouraging remark we lost no time signing her up as guest columnist.

Here's what she penned:

I just heard you interview Flo Ziegfeld on television so I won't say anything about that except that I appeared before the WGBS television station in New York and my mother said it came over the air fairly good, considering the subject. Mother and I live together upon Seventy-third street and we have three lovely companions — two canaries and an English fin. . . One of the canaries has my ruffled hair and if he could sit on a piano I guess he could sing "My Bill."

Helen Morgan

You know most people are wrong about this piano business. I don't sit on a piano during my broadcasts. Of course when I sing "My Bill" I would like to be on a piano, it is so persuasively reminiscent of the part I played in "Show Boat."

You have asked me to say what I do in my spare time. When I have a minute between rehearsals I read biographies. Right now it's Edel's "Savage Messiah."

I have a weakness for anything exotic. Maybe that's why I sneak around to the front of the house during rehearsals to watch "Rearl" in her Oriental dance. She is cute. She speaks only French and we have lots of fun with her.

Not long ago I received a radio letter that eight telephone girls in Brooklyn had formed a "Helen Morgan Club." I investigated and found that the girls had adopted an insignia for their organization—a black and gold fraternity pin with the initials "H. M." and a chain clasp leading to a small golden mouse. You know my nickname is "Mousie." I was so elated with the girls' expression that I reserve eight choice seats for them at every show. They also investigate needy cases that come to my attention.

This is the first trip that I have had an opportunity to view your glorious city. I am impressed with the Cathedral of Learning, the Art Museum and Schenley Park. I waited almost an hour at the Westinghouse Memorial to see that golden turtle. Is he still hibernating?

I would like to see your readers in person, any time. Those that I do not meet on the stage I will greet tonight on the radio. Thank you.

Helen Morgan

THE LOUDSPEAKER

By LOUIS REID

NEW YORK, June 15.—Stimulation spelled with a $ is the newest plan—a four months' plan, if you're a stickler for details—of the broadcast barons for wooing the muse of melody.

Digging deeply into their vaults they have come up smiling with a program for bestowing thousands of dollars upon those American composers who can abandon Hollywood or Europe long enough this summer to set down on paper ambitious notes for orchestras.

The setting down, of course, must be inspired. It must stand a chance of being adjudged among the "best orchestral works." Thus does M. Aylesworth, grand duke of NBC, seek the musical uplift of radio. It is a far-reaching plan. It might even be called, were the phrase not so shopworn, "a noble experiment." For it marks the first time in the history of broadcasting that the radio chiefs have used some of their immense revenue to foster new American music.

* * *

It is only natural that music should receive the first philanthropic tribute of the broadcasters, for it is to music that they devote the major part of their attention. Evidently they feel they have not done enough in the past, even though they have enlisted in their armies practically all of the outstanding musicians of the land, even though they have given the air to all the world's finest music.

* * *

Evidently they feel that American orchestral music has come to a definite halt; that native composers, pressed by economic burdens, have sought—are seeking their rewards in lyric tributes to sweetie and ba-by and the great god jazz, that the native composers cannot afford to experiment in orchestral forms if they would keep one leap ahead of the wolf.

Here and there there have been isolated attempts to give to radio examples of orchestral music-writing, notably from such musicians as Robert Braine and Rube Bloom, but the attempts have been made between other jobs. They have not had the stimulus of financial support.

* * *

Well, there are those who will advance the notion that financial aid has nothing to do with musical inspiration, that if a composer has the stuff in him it will come out despite the possibility of a platter of gold. Such a philosophy had some force a decade or two ago.

Today competition is too keen. A modern composer can no more risk starvation writing orchestral works than a modern poet can risk starvation penning epic poems. And so orchestral composition has languished, and bands in and out of radio have been forced to depend upon the works of past masters.

* * *

The experiment will be watched closely in the musical world as well as in the world of radio. It may uncover some new genius. It may bring to light something new and unusual from the jazzified pens of Gershwin and Janssen and Grofe. It may set Taylor and Cadman and Carpenter upon new activities.

TELL IT TO SALLY

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By SALLY MARTIN

Prejudice and Suspicion Can Ruin Marriage

Are all women worthless? Will they two-time anyone who trusts them?

Peter B. believes they are and would. Yes, he Fell In Love. Not that that changed his opinion of the Fair Sex any. Even though his Grand Pash made him decide finally to give one of 'em a trial, he was still suspicious and on the watch for the Double Cross.

A WOMAN HATER

Did he get it? He did, or at least he thinks so. It wasn't long before the lady walked out on him. So now he's all gummed up with self-pity . . . and hates 'em worse 'n ever.

"Dear Sally Martin:

"Why is it you are always telling people that marriage is such a wonderful thing? Of course, I suppose it's because you are a woman and therefore in cahoots with the rest of your sex.

"Now, maybe you think I don't know what I am talking about, when I say that no man with any sense gets married, especially nowadays . . . but you're wrong, if you do. I'm speaking from experience. I tried it.

"I began in the first place, by being a woman hater. I saw just how frivolous and untrustworthy women were, but, like all the rest of the saps, I finally fell for one of them. I knew when I did it that I was a fool. My opinion of women in general hadn't changed. But I fell for this one so hard that I just naturally fell into the trap which Nature sets for us . . . I married her.

"And she did just what I might have expected . . . what I did expect in my saner moments. In fact, she gave me the run-around.

"I had worked hard on my job till I was getting a good salary, and had—and have—a good future before me. But even that wasn't enough for her. Even though I gave her a good home, and was never stingy with her . . . she just packed up and left—walked out on me one day. Of course we had had a few quarrels, but she knew that I was giving her as much confidence as I could give any woman, and was treating her the best I knew how. Yet she just up and left, with no excuse whatever, and destroyed forever what little faith I had in her . . . and in all women. I tell you again that marriage is just a trap . . . a trap into which a woman lures a man.

POISONOUS PREJUDICE

I started as a woman hater and after this experience, I still am one, and I say to other men, stay out of marriage, if you don't want to get double-crossed like I did.

PETER B."

Oh, yeah? Well, I wonder how long you'd have hung around and been "good dog," big boy, if the little woman had given you to understand that men were all biotic, but that she was being generous and giving you a chance, even though no man deserved such consideration?

It wasn't Woman who ruined your marriage. It was your own poisonous prejudice and suspicion. Sure women aren't perfect any more than you are perfect. But most of them are just human enough to get up and kick you for expecting them to be cheats. And that's exactly what you brought on yourself.

Your wife walked out on you because you made yourself so pestiferous she couldn't stand you any longer . . . and not because she was a woman and therefore crooked. No marriage built on hate and suspicion can last.

Girl Who Yearned for Big City Glad to Return to Home Town—Fay King

By FAY KING

How often it happens that one pretty sister is willing and satisfied to remain in the small home town, while the other sister is discontent and longs to go far away—and does.

She achieves more or less success in the Big City and from time to time returns to give the home town "natives" an eyeful of her city ways and city clothes.

It all seems very wonderful and glamorous.

And then how often it happens that the "successful" sister in time returns and is so glad to find rest and comfort in her sister's contented little home where she has been happy with her husband and babies.

"You were the wise and the lucky one!" she says again and again.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Young and Old Should Swim for Good Health

As I write this I am sitting beside the still waters of the Great Sound in Bermuda. It is a wonderful day and all seems well with the world. The turmoils of other lands are far away.

Dr. Copeland

This morning I sat on the rocks overlooking one of the island's charming bathing beaches. The young folks disported themselves like a lot of beautiful mermaids and husky mermen.

Swimming is one of the best of sports. It is good for young and old. In my opinion, it is overlooked by all too many who would be benefited by it.

Specialists have long regarded bathing as one of the most important of the curative methods. Years ago, in Hamburg, Germany, I saw hundreds of persons suffering from rheumatism and joint ailments, who were kept immersed in tubs of running water. Their heads were supported in such a way as to make drowning impossible when the patients fell asleep.

Perhaps that was more or less of a fad, but no one can doubt that the physical exercise of swimming is decidedly beneficial. Even for persons who are partially paralyzed it is helpful. Indeed, it is one of the recognized treatments for children who have had infantile paralysis. It helps to strengthen the muscles and to restore function.

In swimming, the muscles of the arms, legs and trunk are called into action. Back and chest muscles, as well as the long muscles, are given thorough exercise.

If you have a weak heart, or are "short-winded" from any cause, you must use common sense. Surf bathing, racing and overstraining must be avoided. But no matter how frail you may be, swimming in still and not too cold water will do you good.

It is a great mistake to stay in the water too long. You have been in too long if you fail to react well from the brisk rubbing with a coarse towel. There should be a glorious glow after the skin is dry.

It is well to begin the season gradually. Do not swim too much the first day. It is surprising how lame and worn out overdoing will cause you to be.

Some of you used to swim when you were young. Why not do it now? It will help you to stay young and to renew your youth.

Needless to say, the water must be pure. The shores and bath houses must be clean. Under proper conditions swimming deserves far more popularity than it has.

Correct Manners

By MRS. CORNELIUS BEECKMAN

A Wedding Invitation Problem

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like to know the correct form of a wedding invitation. My fiancee's parents live in another state and as there is illness in the family, there is an uncertainty as to whether they will be able to come here. In that case, please tell me just how the invitation should be worded. The wedding will take place at 5 o'clock at our neighboring church. JOHN.

Even under these conditions, I advise that the invitations, if they are to be formal and engraved, should be issued in the names of the parents of the fiancee. Like this:

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Mills request the honor of your presence at the marriage of their daughter Mary to Mr. John Francis Dows on Tuesday, the seventh of June, at five o'clock, The Neighborhood Church, Home City, New York.

If, however, the invitations are not to be formal, or if under the circumstances, the girl feels that it would be best to keep her wedding informal (and I should think that it would be), then she might write notes of invitation. Like this:

Dear Jane:

John and I are to be married, most informally, on Tuesday, the seventh of June, at five o'clock, at the Neighborhood Church, and we both want very much to have you and Tom be with us. You will come, won't you?

Devotedly yours,

Announcing the "Secret" Wedding

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

A young couple have been married secretly for five months and now they wish to announce it to their friends and acquaintances. How shall they do it?

Would it be proper to have a reception at this late date?

READER.

Under these circumstances I always suggest that the announcement be made as inconspicuous as possible. That is, that the couple tell their closest relatives and friends, and write to the others. No reception, no party-occasion to make the announcement more "dramatic." After they have become settled in their new home, then they might well have their friends to dine with them, and later have larger parties. But this by way of hospitality, not by way of "announcing" their marriage.

A Thoughtful, But Not Necessary Gesture

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1. At a formal affair honoring a sorority's first anniversary, is it proper to present the escorts with a souvenir bearing the sorority's emblem?

2. If so, what would you suggest as being appropriate?

A READER.

1. Yes, this would be a thoughtful thing to do, but not, of course, necessary.

2. There might be card cases or change purses for the women and wallets for the gentlemen. Or, for everyone, a small imitation leather blotter.

Marion Reveals Confided Secret to Her Chum

Marion's request for her grandmother's lock box with her "fortune" in it was like the ringing of a warning bell deep in my consciousness. What lay behind her apparently simple request I could not determine. But there were fantastic even sinister—possibilities far in the background which I could not afford to overlook. I must not arouse the young girl's antagonism.

"I'm sorry, dear," I said, "but I can't get it for you. It isn't here; it's down in the safety deposit vault of the bank, and of course today is a holiday even if you thought it wise to take it out."

"But I don't understand," she said, the slightest suspicion of a frown upon her winsome face. "I thought you were keeping that in your own room."

"I did keep it there," I said, "until we had the attempted robbery at the farmhouse."

"Oh! yes. Mums told me burglars got into the house, but she couldn't imagine what they were after as they took nothing."

"That's because she knows nothing of the possibly valuable secret your grandmother's box holds." I replied. I don't want to alarm you, but your room was the only one disturbed that night. If the box had been there instead of in the bottom of my trunk where I put it when you entrusted it to me, I am afraid you never would have seen it again."

"Oh!" she said ruefully. Then her eyes sparkled with excitement.

"Was that the reason you telegraphed me to let you show the box to someone?"

"Yes, but I have had no opportunity this vacation for a conversation with you long enough to tell you about it."

She blushed furiously.

"I have been pretty busy," she acknowledged then swept on into hurried questioning.

"Who was the 'someone' and was that the reason you put the box in the bank?"

"The 'someone' was my father," I told her, "and he naturally advised carrying the box to the bank after we had satisfied ourselves it had not been disturbed. He said that the burglars had been frightened off once, but that they might come again."

"Oh! boy!" Marion spun around on her toes and clapped her hands gleefully. "It's all just like a movie. Won't Carol be pepped up when she hears of this? You can get the box out of the bank tomorrow, can't you, long enough so she can see it and know I'm not dreaming."

"Marion!" I gasped. "You don't mean you've told Carolyn anything about that box?"

She stopped her impromptu dance and came to a halt before me, her eyes wide with astonishment.

"Why not?" she asked naively. "She's my 'roomie,' isn't she?"

"Be careful!" something whispered inside me, and I promptly hedged. I know something of the intense loyalty which sometimes exists between "roomies" in girls' boarding schools.

"Yes, I had forgotten that," I said smoothly. "Of course, you tell her everything. But you see this was something so very special. Didn't your grandmother give it to you when she was near death, and ask you to keep its contents a secret?"

"I think she was most anxious that Mother shouldn't know about it, for some reason or other," Marion said with a quickness which told me she already had argued this question with herself. "And you know I gave it to you, because I was so foolish—and mean about my step-father then."

"But you did entrust it to me," I said slowly, "and I believe it will be safer in my keeping than if I turn it over to you to take back to school."

"Oh, I don't want to do that!" she cried. "I just wanted to show Carolyn that secret drawer."

"I think that could be arranged," I smiled, relieved that she did not want to take the box away.

"Oh!" you darling!" Marion caroled hugging me, "and now for the other. Do you know if Mums and Dad and I stay here for dinner tonight, you'll have sixteen at the table, and Mrs. Brixton will have only eleven!"

"Poor Mrs. Brixton!" I gibed, to hide my dismay at what I knew she was going to ask me.

"And Carol and her mother wanted to know if you'd care very much if we three went over there for dinner. We're all coming back here as you invited us, right afterwards, you know. Won't you say 'yes?'"

"That isn't mine to say, Marion," I said trying to keep my voice steady for the idea of Christmas dinner without Lilliam was unnerving. Then as the sound of a musical motor horn sounded from the road, and Marion danced to the window exclaiming "It's Mr. Veritzen." I reflected drearily that it did not matter who did or did not eat Christmas dinner with us. It would be spoiled for me anyway by the presence at our board of my employer whose persistence in gifts had so nearly upset Dicky's temper.

Household Hints

If the soap is not altogether pure, when combined with a starch, it will yellow the clothes.

Colored clothes will never have a bright, clear color and white clothes will never be pure white, unless rinsed well and often.

Oil paintings may be cleaned by rubbing the surface with a pared white potato. The soiled potato should be cut away as it picks up the dirt. The method is harmless. Another effective way is the use of a woolen cloth and olive oil. To restore brightness, carefully apply fresh milk to the surface with a soft cloth.

For the sick room—if a small clock or watch must be kept by the patient's bed and the constant ticking is a source of annoyance, cover the timepiece with a glass tumbler. Then the clock or watch may be seen but not heard. A broken alarm clock is useful, too. The hands may be set to indicate the time when the patient is to receive the next dose of medicine.

The Beauty Box

By HELENE FOLLETT

Coiffures with slanted partings are the whoop-de-dee right now. The feminine head is going modern. Triangles, squares and everything.

Plastic surgeons have been known to create permanent blushes by tattooing the cheeks with red ink. How successful the job may be, the writer cannot say. No woman who has ever had it done has been known to trot about telling the world.

Pint-sized girls, those who look little enough to be tucked into pockets, are forever complaining because they lack length. No use grieving. The skeleton of the body determines height; nothing in the world will make bones grow after one has outgrown the growing age. After all, the baby-dolls needn't feel sorry for themselves. Better to be too short than too tall. Dress problems are simpler.

Have you heard about the brush curl? It is suitable for the short bob with hair of uniform length all over the head. Tresses are divided into inch squares on the scalp. Each little lock is moistened, brushed over the operator's finger, fastened with a special hairpin. There will be usually 50 curls. A cap of net goes over the head, the hair dryer is turned on. The result? Hair beautifully marcelled with ringlet ends.

It is necessary for the vitality and health of the complexion to keep the pores of the skin free of blockades. When sebaceous substance, topped with atmospheric grime, loads the ducts of the human hide, the walls of the pores spread and break, the texture of the epidermis takes on a coarse, ugly appearance which is a network of fine pittings. This condition is avoided by soap and water cleansings, daily anointing with cream, ice rubs, free use of cold water.

Tell the housewife to exercise and she will greet the idea with derisive laughter. What, with romping the vacuum cleaner over the rugs, getting down on her royal knees and wiping up the bathroom floor, dashing to the front door, the back door and the telephone, she believes she has plenty of activity. So she has. Activity that will be beneficial to muscular health if her movements are highly energized and rhythmic. She must carry herself properly. She must bend from the waistline, never throw the shoulders forward, hold chest and chin high.

SIDEWALKS of PITTSBURGH

By William Pfarr

William Pfarr

When Ziegfeld landed in Pittsburgh Saturday with his showgirls and principals, he was in a happy humor. He felt he had a hit show. At the same time he realized he would have to eliminate at least 40 per cent of the entertainment to pack it in one evening. At Mr. Sisson's Pennsylvania Station, Ziegfeld posed for the photographers with his arms about Gladys Glad, the prize beauty, but that was simply for photographic purposes. As soon as the camera men clicked their clickers Miss Glad's husband, one Mark Hellinger, rushed up and rescued her.

Hellinger is the columnist you have been reading in the Sun-Telegraph. An able writer, his critical friends insist on describing him as Mr. Gladys Glad. Nevertheless, although Miss Glad is a double eyeful, when her husband tells a story she listens. For instance:

Jones, an inveterate golfer, died and went to the bad place. Acclimated, he was amazed to see a perfect golf course . . . silken greens, smooth fairways, matched clubs.

"Is," asked Jones, "all this free to the members?"

"Certainly," explained the local representative.

"Fine," Jones exclaimed, grabbing a driver and stepping up to No. 1 tee. "This is more than anybody could expect. Find me a ball."

"That," apologized the representative, "is the aitch of it; we have no golf balls."

Almost all of us have our troubles but Patrolman Joe Fay is entitled to an A-1 complaint. While strolling his beat, Patrolman Fay was called upon to hurry to the scene of six fire alarms. It was a coincidence, possibly, that all six were false, and all Patrolman Fay could do was stand around fuming.

However, his reward came a few days ago. He had complained to Acting Lieut. Hugh Lavery and Lavery had carried the complaint to the higher authorities. So when Fay reported for rollcall Battalion Chief George Spaar strode through the rows of attentive policemen and pinned a badge on Patrolman Fay. The badge proclaimed: Honorary Fireman.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., June 15.

To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

No part of a person's private life is free from the eagle eye of Brisbane. I am as ashamed of my early years spent at Eaton and Oxford as all the rest of their alumni is. But if any of us can conceal it and get away with it, why don't he give us credit, and let us go on living it down. But, no! he has got to "blab" it to the world.

Will Rogers

By the way, if you think this ain't going to be the worst winter for unemployment we ever had, just count the number in these college graduation classes. Immigration is not our biggest problem. It's surplus diplomas. Yours, WILL.

WILL RESUME AS CITIZENS DESPITE BAN

Officers of Boards Give Indorsement to Project; Meeting Soon to Be Called

Impressed by city-wide interest, Mrs. Ethel C. Mueller announced today that she would call a meeting of members of former boards of school visitors, to discuss carrying on their work, Tuesday evening, June 30.

The meeting, she said, would be asked to organize, elect officers and appoint a committee to contact the Board of Education. With the machinery ready, the groups would carry on their work with the start of the new school year, in September.

WORK AS CITIZENS

Mrs. Mueller proposes that the boards continue their duties as before, in the capacity of private citizens. Through their contact committee, representing boards from the entire city, she believes their recommendations would carry more weight with the Board of Education than they did when presented for the individual visitors boards, in the past.

Mrs. Mueller cited indorsements of the plan from officers of the boards that were discontinued in an amendment to the Mansfield omnibus school bill, amending the Pennsylvania school code.

Grant C. Nobbs, president of the Eleventh Ward board, said:

PLAN APPROVED

Mrs. Mueller's suggestion sounds like a pretty good plan to me. It's at least worthy of consideration and, I might say, I'm willing to go along with her."

Mrs. Swan Ott, secretary of the Nineteenth Ward board, said:

"That would be a better plan than the elected boards. I'm going to help Mrs. Mueller if I can."

Mrs. Lucy B. Moffat, secretary of the Thirtieth Ward board, said:

"I do think there should be some connection between homes and the school board. Mrs. Mueller's plan may be helpful."

Mrs. Alice Kennelly, president of the Eighth Ward board, said:

"I think it's a good idea. I think our board will like it."

Mrs. Blanche B. Pearsol, secretary of the Fifteenth Ward board, said:

INDORSES IDEA

"That's a very good suggestion. I myself am very much in favor of it. I hope she does call a meeting."

Mrs. Estelle K. Williams, secretary of the Fourteenth Ward board, said:

"I brought it up at our final meeting, last week, and they didn't seem very much interested in Mrs. Mueller's plan."

Mrs. Belle D. Pardick, secretary of the Twenty-second Ward board, said:

"Every ward needs citizens interested in the schools. I think Mrs. Mueller's plan would be wonderful."

Doc is the president of Columbia University and is now on another famous scolding tour of Europe.

He tells the world what's wrong with it and makes 'em like it. We never yet have attended a lecture where the Doc didn't show up with a high hat and a whip.

In his chirp to the American Club, in Paris, the gentle old doctor fried the world in its own stratosphere, panned all the diplomats and dished up the financiers in a nice, brown coat of cracker crumbs.

He makes 'em mad. But they invite him back. And on his second visit he turns them over and broils them on that side.

There is nothing Nick likes better than an argument, provided you gag yourself with the affirmative.

He's got a lot of competition in Charley Schwab, who is also a good man after the coffee and before the cigars.

All of which proves the statement that the world is being run from the speaker's table.

M. A. MUSMANNO SEEKS COUNTY JUDGESHIP

Coal Police Fight Leader Cites Legislative Record As Qualification for Bench

Representative M. A. Musmanno, of the Twelfth Legislative District, who led the fight in the Legislature for the abolition of the coal and iron police, today announced his candidacy for judge of County Court. A veteran of the World War, he holds a captain's commission in the U. S. Army Reserve Corps.

Mr. Musmanno stated:

"In the judiciary, as well as the legislative branch of the government, there should be a burning desire on the part of the officeholder to render service to none other than the rank and file of the people that make up the electorate.

VIEWS HIGH OFFICE

"The judicial office, while it embodies the element of personal decision, nevertheless, is not intended to be used as a vehicle for personal dictatorship. The judge is but the servant of the people who elevated him to that exalted office and it is his duty to enforce the law in accordance with the letter and spirit of the constitution and the bill of rights.

"Too frequently judges read into statutes what was never intended by the law-making bodies acting as the citizens of the commonwealth.

"Through my experience as a legislator, I hope to bring into the office of judge, if elected, that spirit of complete adherence to the fundamental guarantees of life, liberty and property and the pursuit of happiness as laid down by the people through their delegates in Congress or in the state's assembly.

STRIVES FOR IDEAL

"A judge should have a thorough knowledge of the law, he should have a sympathetic feeling for the ills of mankind, he should have unflinching courage in the absolute impartiality of his decisions and he should be guided only by the twin-torch of conscience and knowledge.

"That is the ideal I strive for and that is the ideal to which I dedicate myself in this candidacy."

Attorney Musmanno was born in Stowe Township and after attending the local schools completed his education in Washington, D. C., where he acquired six college degrees, in law, liberal arts and philosophy. He has written a book on the Constitution, which was accepted and published by Congress and distributed among the colleges and libraries of the nation. He is a member of the American Legion, the Elks and the Eagles.

CITY PRESSES CLEANUP DRIVE

500 Tons of Rubbish, Ashes Taken from Hill District; More Equipment Asked

The drive to clean up rubbish and ashes in Pittsburgh will be continued with increased energy this week under the City Bureau of Highways and Sewers. The campaign is virtually completed in most wards, but is only about one-half finished in the Hill district.

Trucks furnished by the city and by the Retail Coal Dealers Association have hauled more than 500 tons from the Hill section. The coal dealers gave the use of six trucks for one week. Action by the city followed pictures of conditions and editorial comment in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

ASK EQUIPMENT

For this week, John Ihlder, executive director of the Pittsburgh Housing Association, is seeking the aid of the Pittsburgh Chapter of Motor Truck Owners to furnish equipment for a final drive. J. A. Harrison, of Harrison and Shields, president of the chapter, has agreed to ask the organization to help.

A lot owned by the city in Webster avenue near Crawford street, where a large volume of rubbish has been removed, is now being used by the boys of the neighborhood as a ball field. A number of unsightly shacks at the rear of the lot have been razed.

The campaign against dangerous buildings being carried on under H. L. Ley, superintendent of the Bureau of Building Inspection, has resulted in the posting of 30 unsafe houses. Files are being scanned and it is expected that a large number of other buildings will be added to the condemned list.

QUICK ACTION TAKEN

Where buildings are in such shape that there is hazard to pedestrians or playing children, quick action will be taken, Ley said. Owners will receive a warning and be given an opportunity to make the buildings safe.

Often the department has found it difficult to locate owners. Where no owner can be found, the building may be posted if it is a menace and finally taken down and the material piled on the premises.

What this Country Needs is

WISE BUYING

WHAT this country needs is more intelligent buying, says a Government official. How can you become an intelligent buyer? One way, he says, is by reading labels to make sure quality and weight are right. He would organize the housewives of every community into leagues of intelligent buyers, meeting regularly for exchange of buying information.

He imagines a meeting of such a club in which it is reported that store after store is asking a high price for various-sized packages of food, while one store is selling a larger package for less. Since it compares favorably with the more expensive food, the buyers' club decides to buy that brand and so teach other food dealers a lesson . . .

It is just such intelligent buying that has won for A & P so many millions of regular customers. To them, "A & P" has become a hall mark of reliability. They know that foods in A & P stores are as sound as to quality, quantity, and low prices as is humanly possible to long experience and great resources.

BUCS, ROBINS IDLE TODAY

Sport Comment

Chapman as Base Thief. • Twenty Grand Supreme.
Changes Hamper Bucs. Still Picking Carnera.
Senators' Stiff Fight. School Teams Praised.

MORE SIGNS OF OLD GAME'S RETURN

EVEN IN THE American League, where the change in the ball this year was less drastic than in the National, evidence that old baseball is coming back to some extent is to be found in the stolen-base record of Ben Chapman. Yankee teams in recent years did not bother much about stealing bases. They depended on the long hits of murderers' row for their runs. But since being shifted from the infield to the outer gardens, Chapman this season has revived the old art of bag-pilfering. In 48 games up to today he stole 20 bases. In 138 games during all of last year he stole only 14.

Ben Chapman

An idea as to how great a departure this means from former customs may be judged from the fact that the leading basestealer of the American League in 1930, Marty McManus, stole only 23 sacks, just three more than Chapman has stolen already this year with the season little more than one-third gone. Hazen Cuyler led the National with 37. The entire Philadelphia National League club stole only 34, while in the American the Red Sox pilfered only 42 and the world champion A's only 48.

IT IS UNLIKELY that the Pirates will be able to settle down into anything like a consistent stride until they get a regular lineup and keep it. The same goes for the batting order. Few clubs ever got anywhere that were still experimenting and making changes almost daily in the middle of June.

With the dropping of Sunday's game in Brooklyn, the Bucs equaled their longest streak of the season. This made the third time they had lost four games in succesion. Only three games remain to be played at Forbes Field in the present home stay, and then comes another tough eastern trip, a program that doesn't promise much for the advancement of a club that rarely presents the same lineup two days in a row.

PERHAPS THE SENATORS may never succeed in overtaking the Athletics, but you've got to give them credit for keeping doggedly at it and continuing to put up a determined fight in the face of a Mackian drive that would have taken the heart out of the average pursuer.

As a general rule, a club winning 31 out of 37 straight games, as the A's have done, would be so far out in front that the race would be as good as over. But the Senators, whose latest rush netted them nine straight wins up to today, have kept fighting so persistently that the lead of the White Elephants this morning was only equal to that held by the Cardinals in the National League—three games. Washington has at least saved the Harridge race from being turned into a runaway.

TWENTY GRAND may not be quite as great a horse as was Man o' War, but that he is equally supreme in his field is not to be doubted after the new evidence he gave Saturday in winning the Belmont Stakes with ease in 2:29 3-5, a new record for the race and close to the track and American records for a mile and a half. Instead of the two-horse race that had been anticipated, it was only a one-horse exhibition. Jamestown, on paper the only obstacle between Twenty Grand and the 3-year-old championship, wasn't able even to finish second, being nosed out by Sun Meadow for that position, and the two finishing eight lengths behind the star of the Greentree Stable. There is no longer any doubt, if there has been any since the Kentucky Derby, as to America's best horse of 1931. Twenty Grand is in a class of his own.

Jimmy O'Connor

YOUNG BILLY SULLIVAN, who has gone from Notre Dame to the White Sox, the club for which his father once was a star backstop, wasn't the only son of a former major league maskman to loom on Notre Dame's team this year as a possible future professional luminary.

Another was Jimmy O'Connor, son of Jack O'Connor, who caught for the Pirates in 1900-01-02, following Cleveland and St. Louis engagements. He is an outfielder and is said to have shown talent that promises a bright professional future. He did not make an error all last season.

THE DELAY OF five days in putting on the Primo Carnera-Pat Redmond bout in Brooklyn, postponed from last Wednesday until tonight, has not caused boxing followers in general to change their opinion as to how the thing is likely to end.

Redmond propaganda over the East in the meantime has caused a shortening of odds in the betting, if any, but the average fan still believes that if Pat had a chance to win the Carnera people never would have made the match, and they look for Primo to demonstrate tonight that there is at least one fighter worse than himself.

BEFORE LEAVING TOWN Saturday night, the New York Giants paid a high tribute to the Schenley and South Hills High School teams, which are battling for the city championship. Several of the McGrawites watched the game Friday evening and pronounced the quality of ball played equal to that put up by any scholastic teams they had ever seen anywhere in the country. Mel Ott in particular got a big kick out of the exhibition and was chiefly impressed by the work of the pitchers, Earl Stratton and Bill Lentz.

TWO FOOTBALLS TO be used in a benefit game between U. C. L. A. and St. Mary's in Los Angeles next New Year's Day are first to take a trip around the world. After being autographed by rulers and other famous men in all lands, they will be returned, used in the game and then auctioned off to the highest bidders.

The father of the idea is Harry Meyers, of the American Legion, which is part promoter of the game and will receive one-third of the proceeds. He already has Gen. John J. Pershing and Will Rogers on the dotted line, and the balls are now ready to be sent to England for the signatures of King George and the Prince of Wales, thence to France, Belgium, Italy and other countries until they have circled the globe. President Hoover will be the last to sign.

INASMUCH AS LACROSSE, like hockey, had its origin in Canada, it isn't strange that athletes of the Dominion who are skilled in one of these sports should also find a strong appeal in the other.

The club rosters of a new professional lacrosse league playing night games in New York resemble those of the National Hockey League. On the list of active players appear such well-known names as Howie Morenz, Eddie Shore, Taffy Abel and Ching Johnson.

Tommy Armour

THAT TOMMY ARMOUR, the new British open golf champion who has kept in the United States the title relinquished by Bobby Jones, surpases Jones and all others in iron shots, is the assertion of Francis Ouimet, former open and amateur champion of the United States. "Armour is the greatest iron shot player in the world," Ouimet says. "His iron shots are marvelous. Almost always he lays up that shot so close to the pin that he is continually flirting with a birdie." As showing the strength of his wrists and fingers, Armour can hold out horizontally two billiard cues between the index and middle fingers of his right hand. It looks easy until the onlooker tries to hold out even one that way.

Pittsburgh Boy Gets Swim Trophy

MANLIUS, N. Y., June 15.—The Burkhardt twimming trophy was awarded to Cadet William Berger Dunlap, of 516 South Highland avenue, Pittsburgh, at the sixty-second commencement exercises at the Manlius School. A feature of the exercises was the announcement of a gift of $100,000 to the school by Henry D. Knox, of East Aurora, N. Y., the father of a cadet.

The swimming trophy won by the Pittsburgh cadet is presented by Frederick T. Burkhardt and awarded annually to the cadet scoring the highest number of points in swimming meets during the year.

Approaching Tangiers from the sea, my ship passed the sleepy little town of Tarifa. One hundred years ago this quiet little place was a humming beehive of activity . . . for then it was the home of the original "racketeers." The word "tariff" comes from Tarifa . . . where all ships had to pay to pass. I have just motored a thousand miles along the Barbary Coast where the Corsair fleets of infamous memory collected tribute from the great maritime nations of the world for 200 years . . . or until little United States of America said "Millions for defense, but not one cent for tribute." (The U. S. A. was less than 40 years old at the time.)

The pirates are gone, but the spirit still lives. Extended palms greet you everywhere . . . and, well, just try to get an even break from a Moor in a bargain. The populace of Ighil Imoula, Algeria, made a vow "while others live by word of mouth, so shall they live by being silent," and to this day the inhabitants roam the country as fake deaf mutes thereby earning their living.

TUNIS—April 2.

I find the old pirate states of Barbary—Morocco, Algeria, Tunisia, and Tripoli—to be among the most interesting countries on earth. You will like Marrakech, the red; Meknes, the royal city of Moulai Ismael . . . father of 888 children; the Holy City of Moulai Idriss, where no white man is allowed to remain after sundown; Bidonville in Casablanca—built entirely of American tin cans—where a wife can be bought for a dozen tomato tins; and I recommend Fez, Tlemcen, Biskra, Constantine—the "City of the Air," and Timgad, a Roman city built in the desert, and not forgetting Tunis, where this is written.

But my time is up—I sail toward Egypt tomorrow. But if you will watch the "Believe It or Not" cartoons I will show the Tuaregs of the Desert, a fierce tribe of masculine he-men who wear veils. They believe crosseyes to be a sign of divine favor, and they are so subservient to their women-folks that they (the men) are not allowed out after dark unchaperoned.

Believe It or Not—RIPLEY

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF LAST SATURDAY: JAMES MACIE SMITHSON—James Macie Smithson (1765-1829), an Englishman who never had been to the United States and had neither friends nor acquaintances there, bequeathed the reversion of his fortune of $500,000 or more to the United States of America for the purpose of "founding at Washington under the name of the Smithsonian Institution an establishment for the increase and diffusion of knowledge among men." This sum was infinitely larger in relative importance at the time than it is now. The Smithsonian Institution, founded by this British subject in a strange and faraway country, occupies an exceptional position within the government of the United States and has had a very prominent place in the scientific activities of our age.

MAXIE DRAWS BIG CROWD

CONNEAUT LAKE PARK, Pa., June 15.—(AP.)—A crowd estimated by camp attaches as 2,500 watched Max Schmeling box at his training quarters here yesterday in preparation for his meeting with W. L. (Young) Stribling at Cleveland, July 3.

Johnny Risko, Tommy Freeman, George Chip and other boxers of note saw the workout, which consisted of five rounds of boxing, heavy and light bag work and calisthentics. The German's sparring partners were Sammy Cohen, Cleveland heavyweight, George Panka, Pittsburgh, and Tony Marullo, New Orleans.

The champion's next sparring exhibition will be Wednesday afternoon. He will golf, swim and fish today and tomorrow.

A return soccer game between the Pittsburgh and Cleveland German Clubs is scheduled here Sunday, June 28, when German delegations from both cities will make another trip to this resort to visit Schmeling. The team played a tie in their first effort, a few weeks ago.

STRIB CHANGES ROUTINE

GEAUGA LAKE, O., June 15.—(INS.)—Inactivity today featured the training camp of Young Stribling, who is to battle Max Schmeling for the world heavyweight crown in Cleveland, July 3. A little golf and a brief session of road work were all that was on the challenger's program. Ring workouts will be on Tuesday, Thursday, Saturday and Sunday each week until the fight, under a new training schedule placed into effect today by Pa Stribling.

GREENSBURG HOST TO PROS

BULLETIN.

Perry DelVecchio scored a 72 to win the 18 holes medal play pro tourney morning event of Perry DelVecchio Day program at the Greensburg Country Club today.

By VERN SWARTSFAGER

Professional golfers from throughout Western Pennsylvania, Eastern Ohio and Northern West Virginia are playing this morning at the Greensburg Country Club in a medal play event which marks the first scheduled test of the annual Perry Del Vecchio Day activities at that club.

This afternoon, the professionals will team with amateurs of the Greensburg Country Club in a pro-amateur match. This morning's play, however, marks the first real tournament of the season for the professionals and they have gone to Greensburg from far and wide to participate in the prizes—if possible.

The Penn State Alumni Association is competing at the Stanton Heights Golf Club, while a twilight tournament is scheduled to begin around 4 o'clock this afternoon at the Country Club of Pittsburgh.

Tomorrow, Dr. George T. Gregg, Jr., will defend his West Penn seniors' championship at Oakmont. Dr. Gregg is reigning national seniors' champion.

A big field will be playing at the Highland Country Club tomorrow in the annual women's invitation tournament there. It is the first women's invitation affair of this season.

Hype Igoe Picks Redmond to Stop Primo

By HYPE IGOE.
International News Service.

NEW YORK, June 15.—Pat Redmond by a knockout! That's my story, and I'll stick to it.

When this big, hard-hitting Irishman meets Primo Carnera at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight in a 10-round bout, he is going to enter the ring fully convinced that he can hit Signor Carnera on his lantern jaw and knock him out. The same goes for Primo. The Italian thinks Pat has the longer lantern jaw of the two, and, consequently, it is the better target. There'll be some sweet swatting.

But that is exactly the point. Pat Redmond is a harder hitter than the giant Italian, and, when two human monsters get to swinging, I'm going to string with the stiffer puncher of the two. I'm for Pat.

CINCINNATI, June 15.—(INS.)—The roster of the New York Giants was decreased temporarily today by two casualties. Hughie Critz, second baseman, was en route to Rochester, N. Coach George Burns, struck in the face with a liner during batting practice yesterday, was in a local hospital suffering from a possible fracture of the jaw.

The East Pittsburgh women scored 33.94 points, Johnstown getting 32.53; Charleroi, 31.69; Allentown, 21.29; Ambridge, 26.16; Homestead, 20.75; Monessen, 19.30; Monaca, 16.97, and McKeesport, 11.30.

For the third successive Monday the Pirates today were forced to remain idle because of inclement weather, rain preventing the first appearance of the Brooklyn Robins at Forbes Field.

No anouncement was made as to when the contest will be played off.

Pirate officials this afternoon said they had nothing to indicate a deal would be made before midnight. This is the last day in which trades may be made in the majors.

The Freebooters came back to town this morning after spending yesterday in Brooklyn, where they were the victims of a 6-to-3 setback.

The one-day stand in the Flatbush sent the Robins fluttering from Cincinnati to the home coop. After resisting the invasion of the Pittsburghers, the Robins also came on to Pittsburgh to resume hostilities at Forbes Field.

BUCS GO EAST AGAIN

Games will be played tomorrow and Wednesday, weather permitting. At the conclusion of the Wednesday contest the Pirates will leave for New York, where they will begin their second eastern invasion.

Howard Groskloss, West End youth and graduate of Amherst College, was placed in an unfortunate role yesterday as the Robins subdued the Buccos. The collegian failed to field a grounder in the eighth inning when the battle was deadlocked at three all. The misplay opened the way for three Brooklyn runs.

The Buccos made a nervy attempt to get back in the game in the ninth inning, but, with the bases loaded and one out, Jack Quinn, veteran pitcher, forced Jim Mosolf to ground into a double play.

FRENCH LOSES TOUGH ONE

Larry French and Joe Shaute staged a southpaw duel through eight rounds. The Brooklyn lefthander got himself into a jam in the ninth, when three Pittsburgh singles filled up the sacks. The hit that put the tieing run on the base was made by Groskloss, who was trying hard to make up for his misplay of the previous inning.

Says Nick Altrock

(Baseball's Comedian)

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Your Uncle Nick has been busy with the archaeological shovel lately and just dug up a couple of mummified statistics.

Nick Altrock

In tracing back through baseball hieroglyphics I discovered that old Home Run Baker led the league four different seasons in circuit swats. And the most homers he ever collected in a season was an even dozen. That was before the taxidermists stuffed a jack rabbit in the center of the baseball. If Baker only walloped out a dozen in a season these days, he would be shipped to the Three-Eye League to get more seasoning in his vision. A dozen homers on the half shell is just an appetizer for the season's work nowadays.

Dorfman has boxed a number of good ones in the East and recently attracted local notice by holding Tony Herrera to a draw in New York. Herrera, a favorite here, has just finished beating Eddie Anderson at Hickey Park and boxes Johnny Jadich, of Philadelphia, in the main bout at the Bowl next Monday night.

FIERRO IN SEMI-FINAL

According to Mike Ray, manager of Brannon, Eddie is primed to put up the best bout he has offered thus far in making a bid for victory. He has been training with Jackie Rodgers at Willie Davies' camp in the mountains near Bedford and arrived back in town yesterday.

A strong preliminary card rounds out tonight's bill in the open-air arena. Mose Butch, local southpaw bantamweight, boxes Harry Fierro, of Chicago, and Jocko Joe Walters, hard-hitting Negro middleweight, of Springfield, O., meets Indian Tiger West, of Monessen, in two eight-round bouts, and Eddie Brinkman, of Wheeling, takes on Jackie Murray, clever local Negro welterweight, in the six-round opener.

Between Rounds

The Primo Carnera-Jack Redmond bout, postponed from last week, is on at Ebbets Field, Brooklyn, tonight, and, with the tremendous amount of publicity of one sort or another it has received, promises to draw upwards of $40,000 to $50,000.

Only the opening bout remains to be closed to complete the card for the weekly show at Hickey Park, Millvale, Thursday night. Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, meets Archie Bell, New York star, in the 10-round main event. Nordi Smith, Negro middleweight, formerly of Newark, O., now of Pittsburgh, boxes Nicky Hughes, of the North Side, in the second number, and Mickey Solomen, of New Castle, and Jimmy Moore, local Negro middleweight, are in the eight-round semi-final.

Jack Tracey, local Negro middleweight, wants to meet some of the better-class men in his division, and his manager, Jim Buchanan, of Charleroi, is out with what he says is a bona fide offer of a $1,000 guarantee to Buck McTiernan for a bout at any of the local clubs.

Willie Davies, Charleroi bantamweight, has been training in Canada since last Wednesday for his 10-round bout with Lew Farber, of New York, in Montreal next Wednesday night. If he is the victor, he will box the winner of the top 10-rounder, between Art Giroux and Pete Sanstol, at a later date.

Emmett Rocco, Italian heavyweight, of Ellwood City, who takes on a dangerous customer in young Stanley Poreda, of Jersey City, at Cleveland, Wednesday night, already has been in there with a lot of topnotchers, including Johnny Risko, Tom Heeney, Tuffy Griffiths, King Levinsky, Yale Okun, Jack Gross, Angus Snyder, K. O. Christner, Al Friedman, Frankie Wine, Arthur DeKuh, Otto Von Porat, Moise Bouquillon, Joe Sekyra and Big Bill Hartwell, and knows his way around any man's ring.

In Big Trade

TRADE DOUTHIT FOR ROETTGER

CINCINNATI, June 15.—(AP.)—Wally Roettger, outfielder, obtained last winter by the Cincinnati Reds from the New York Giants, today was traded to the St. Louis Cardinals for Taylor Douthit, also an outfielder. The deal was announced by Sidney Weil, Reds president, who said the Cardinals also were given some cash, but did not disclose the amount.

Roettger led the National League in batting for several days earlier this season. His present average is .351. He has made 65 hits so far this year, including 11 doubles, four triples and one home run, and was the second heaviest slugger on the Cincinnati roster.

In going to St. Louis, Roettger will be returning to the club from which he went to the Giants.

CARDS REGAIN FLOWERS

NEW YORK, June 15.—(AP.)—The Brooklyn National League Club yesterday announced the sale of D'Arcy (Jake) Flowers, utility infielder, to the St. Louis Cardinals. It was a cash transaction. Flowers is to join the Cardinals immediately.

The deal sends Flowers back to the club from which he came to Brooklyn. In 1927 the Cardinals traded him to Brooklyn for Bob McGraw, a right-handed pitcher.

LOCALS LAUDED IN CARNEGIE BULLETIN

By JESS CARVER

The dear old Carnegie Foundation (for the advancement of teaching, you know) has unloosed another of its famous bulletins, directed at college athletics in general and football in particular.

According to this latest bulletin, numbered 26, the Foundation investigators, which, if nothing else, certainly are keeping out of the path of Old Man Depression with their $5,000-per-year salaries, profess to see a notable advancement in the attack upon recruiting and subsidizing in American college athletics.

The bulletin goes into some length and detail in sort of a checkup on the good (or evil) its famous "Bulletin 23," of 18 months ago. The new report isn't nearly as voluminous as was the first, which made a piker out of a New York telephone book, and in general its tone is a bit more charitable.

LOCAL LAUDED

Local colleges were treated very well in this latest outburst. The Foundation purports to have reports of vast improvement at Allegheny and Wash-Jeff, and of changes in policy at Geneva and Pitt.

After very gracefully stating the deflation of college football has begun, the bulletin goes on to point out that "there has been an assumption of greater responsibility for the proper conduct of athletics by university officers and trustees" and that "notable attempts have been made to eliminate abuses which have their roots in the prevalent commercialization of American college sport."

The report asserts that professional football, as well as the "caprice of the public" is having its effect on the gate receipts.

No mention is made in the new bulletin of the death of Rockne, although it is just possible that the gentlemen of the committee are basing their prediction that intercollegiate football is going to whistle for its big gates in the future on the fact that the passing of Rockne is bound to have some effect on attendance figures.

The Foundation still is discussing sins and evils where said sins and evils never have been, and probably never will be, admitted. In other words, "Bulletin 26" is just about as far out of step as was "Bulletin 23."

CREWS READY FOR REGATTA

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 15.—(AP.)—Poughkeepsie stirred today, flags and bunting broke out along the main streets and the little town that blazes vividly across the nation's sport pages for one brief day each year, awoke once more to the thrills and colorful pagentry of another intercollegiate championship regatta.

Tomorrow the varsity eight-oared shells of nine universities—California, Washington, Wisconsin, Massachusettes Institute of Technology, Navy, Pennsylvania, Cornell, Columbia and Syracuse—will battle four miles down the Hudson.

Undefeated under Jim Wray's coaching, the defending champion, Cornell, threatens to repeat this year. If Cornell is to be beaten, the experts look to the younger Dick Glendon's Columbia varsity, like Cornell unbeaten and conqueror of Ed Leader's Yale crew; the Huskies of Washington and California's Golden Bears, who met in a record-breaking grapple on the West Coast, with Washington barely the victor, and the Syracuse eight Jim Teneyck still can't decide upon.

Navy, under Dick Glendon, the elder, and Bill Haines' Massachusetts Tech eight are the dark horses, beaten during the regular season, but considered the most improved crews on the river.

Pennsylvania and Wisconsin, the latter untried, have few followers.

GRAYS DIVIDE DUAL BILL

Most of the favorites came through in yesterday's sandlot battles on local lots, the Homestead Grays splitting a doubleheader at Canton and Edgewood turning in the biggest score of the day in defeating J. L. Thomas, 21 to 15.

Book Shoe defeated W. O. W., 9 to 0; the Crawfords topped Immaculate Heart, 7 to 4; Swissvale defeated DePasquales, 6 to 5; D. J. Brodericks won over Snee Dairy, 12 to 10, in a Steel City League game, and the North Siders shut out Troy Hill, 8 to 0, in more important frays.

The Grays won the second game at Canton, 10 to 2, after losing the first, 10 to 9, in 11 innings.

STAR TROTTER SOLD

GOSHEN, N. Y., June 15.—(AP.)—Sale of the 4-year-old trotting stallion Voltaire to Peter Hansen, Copenhagen, Denmark, was announced today by Walter Cox, trainer for the Good Time stable of I. O. Blake, of New York. Voltaire is by Peter Volo and has a record of 2:03¼, made at Lexington, Ky., last September.

WOMAN CLUB OWNER DIES

MILWAUKEE, June 15.—(AP.)—Mrs. Florence Killilea Boley, 29, vice president of the Milwaukee Brewers Baseball Club, of the American Association, died today at the Milwaukee General Hospital after an illness of two weeks.

A blood infection was followed by pneumonia.

Mrs. Boley was perhaps the only woman who ever directed the destinies of a baseball club of the importance of the Milwaukee club.

Mrs. Boley

The club came into her hands February 16, 1929, when her father, Henry F. Killilea, died.

Directors of the club made her president and she assumed direction of the team. She followed the players into spring training camp and on road trips during the season. Throughout 1929 and 1930 she "bossed" the Brewers.

When the slumps came, she smiled and said:

"The boys will pull out of it. They always do."

1930, she was married to Dr. Michale J. Boley, Milwaukee physician. Later she voluntarily relinquished leadership of the club.

Cliff Sutter Wins Tri-State Crown

CINCINNATI, June 15.—(AP.)—Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, yesterday won the singles championship of the thirty-first annual tri-state tennis tourney here by defeating Bruce Barnes, of Austin, Tex., 6-3, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, in the finals at the Cincinnati Tennis Club.

Karl Kamrath and Barnes, both of Austin, Tex., won the men's doubles title by trouncing Sutter and Maurice Bayon, of New Orleans, 6-3, 6-0, 3-6, 6-2.

BUCS FARM OUT GUS DUGAS

Augustin J. Dugas, utility outfielder of the Pittsburgh Pirates, today was sent to the Kansas City club, of the American Association, under an optional agreement and will leave for Columbus, O., tonight to join the Blues.

Dugas has just been released from the St. John's Hospital, on the North Side, where he was confined since the opening of the local National League season with a fractured jaw. The injury was suffered in a collision with Shortstop Ben Sankey while the Pirates were staging a workout prior to their home opener at Forbes Field.

Gus Dugas

The Pirates obtained Dugas from the Wichita club, of the Western League. He bats and throws lefthanded, stands 5 feet 9 inches and weights 165 pounds. He is 22 years of age. The release of Dugas reduces the Pirates' roster to 25, the player limit required by the major leagues by June 15.

With midnight tonight set as the deadline for making trades in the majors, indications were that the Pittsburgh Pirates would be unable to swing a deal. While it has been reliably reported that the locals have been negotiating with several teams in an effort to make an exchange, nothing definite has developed.

M'CLURE WINS CLUB TITLE

Two district country clubs held club championship and feature events yesterday.

At the Highland Country Club, Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Ramsey led a field of 50 couples in a Scotch foursome event. The Ramseys scored a gross of 90, leading the second place pairs, Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Hibbard and Mr. and Mrs. C. G. Howell, by 12 strokes.

Fans in the district will see some interesting games this evening on the local sandlots, all of the leading loops having important battles scheduled.

Mike Kudrau and his St. Joachim nine wil make the trip to Swissvale to meet the Community team. This battle should bring out the fans. The Soho boys are getting better pitching with the acquisition of Bailey, former Soho Board of Trade star, and with the team hitting in its usual stride, will make plenty of trouble for the other clubs.

Two games will be played in the City loop. The J. L. Thomas nine, with victories over Book Shoe and Homewood in its last two league starts, bumps into that tornado out in the South Hills, laying at Dormont High School Field. Whether Sammy Leon and his mates will have better luck than other teams are having trying to stop Ollie Carnegie and Lefty Hughes remains to be seen.

Homewood faces Book Shoe at Olympia Park.

The pitching selection is a problem for Manager Hank Daly and Capt. Heinie Boll. Quigley will probably take the mound, since Carl Stewart worked against the Grays Saturday.

Homewood fans are shuddering when they think what would have happened to the City League champions, if Stewart had not been in wonderful form this season.

Bimmy Steele has been a sore disappointment. It seems to be an assumed fact that Steele cannot pitch a whole game. He is far from being in shape.

One game will be played in the Steel City League. The D. J. Brodericks will entertain Snee Dairy. The Milk boys are eager to stay in that race at the expense of the Lawrenceville club.

In the Minor League, the Washington Orioles will tackle Jednota, and in the Crafton Church League, the Ingram Presbyterians will take a crack at the Methodist nine at Crafton Field.

TENNIS LISTS CLOSE SOON

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Three days remain ere closing of the men's singles entry list for competition in the forty-third annual Western Pennsylvania tennis championships, slated to get under way on the four clay courts of the Stanton Heights Golf Club here next Saturday. Promptly at 8 o'clock Thursday evening, Chairman Frank Smith will write finis to receipt of tardy applications for position in the man-to-man draw and tournament committee members will cluster in huddle over the complicated business of seeding properly the numerous netmen of outstanding ability already listed for participation in the Stanton battles.

That the task of the seeding group will prove no setup is manifest from consideration of the impressive array of talent already aligned for combat. Champion Bill Haseltine, Philadelphia ace, must, of course, be accorded lofty rating, while Dave, John and Billy O'Loughlin, Pittsburgh Athletic Association stars, merit keen consideration from any old angle. B. F. Arkle, blonde flash of Wheeling, will certainly cop ranking, as will Billy Ramsay, powerful performer from Uniontown and Lafayette College. Then, too, Sam Harbison, Leonard Reed and McCook Reed, Edgewood mainstays, cannot be passed over without serious pause.

An unfortunate break for Steel City racqueters was contained in word from Cleveland last week that the Ohio State and the United States Inter-City Doubles titular tilting will be run off in the Buckeye metropolis concurrently with the West Penn event here. The conflict deprives home fans of opportunity to behold such luminaries as Jack Castle, of Buffalo; Walter Martin, Canadian Davis Cup alternate, and Nat and Monte Ganger, Forest City satellites.

McMillan Scores Hole in One

A. W. McMillan, well known local football official, joined the ace-hole club yesterday when he scored a hole-in-one at Ellwood City Country Club.

McMillan was playing with Fritz Forschheimer when he sank his tee shot on the No. 9 hole, a 171-yard affair. He used a No. 4 iron.

AUTO MARK BROKEN

LE MANS, France, June 15.—(AP.)—A new world's record for 24-hour driving was set in the automobile endurance race completed here yesterday. An Italian car, piloted alternately by Lord Earl Howe and Birkin, traveled 2017.65 kilometers for an hourly average of 125.635 kilometers. The previous record for stock cars was set in 1930 at 2930.863 kilometers.

NATS CAPTURE NINTH WIN IN ROW

By Associated Press

The Boston Braves and the New York Yankees have found themselves in unpleasant spots with no apparent way of getting into higher places in the standings. They both have shown themselves to be good clubs, but not quite good enough to overtake the flying leaders of the two circuits.

The Yanks are third in the American League with an average of .563. Yet they are 6½ games behind Washington while the Philadelphia Athletics are soaring way up at the top with a .745 mark. The Braves have a .520 average but cannot get out of fourth place in the National League as the St. Louis Cardinals remain in first place while Chicago and New York fight it out for second.

BRAVES BEAT CUBS

Boston improved its standing considerably yesterday by defeating Chicago's Cubs, 3 to 1, in a brilliant pitching duel. The game produced 19 strikeouts, Fred Frankhouse and Charley Root fanning eight each, and only 11 hits, six of which went to the Cubs.

Chicago dropped into third place as the New York Giants continued their winning streak to four games with a 3-to-2 victory over Cincinnati.

St. Louis put in a busy day of slugging and took two games from the Phillies, 7 to 3 and 13 to 4, Chuck Klein hit his sixteenth homer of the season in the first game.

Washington did all the gaining in the American League, winning its ninth straight game, while the struggling Yanks lost one to Detroit and slipped back another notch. The Senators hammered the St. Louis Browns around to win, 9 to 3. Vernon Gomez, Yankee pitcher, weakened in the tenth inning and gave Detroit a 4-to-2 victory.

INDIANS DOWN A'S

The league leading Athletics also met with a reverse and had their margin cut to three games as Cleveland took a one-day stand, 6 to 4.

The Chicago White Sox also broke a losing streak of six games with a 7-to-4 victory over Boston.

TRIO DROPPED BY STOGIES

The Wheeling Stogies have been unable to strike a winning stride in the Middle Atlantic League this year and so today some more heads are going to fall, with others in line for sudden decapitation. Pitchers Joe Doljack and Bill Coleman are to be released today and Breakfield, an infielder, also is to go.

In an effort to bolster the hurling staff, Ben Armbright is to be signed.

Yesterday the Stogies were walloped by Chareston, 9 to 4. The Senators punched three Stogie hurlers for 14 safe hits.

Scottdale continued its dazzling pace by defeating Johnstown, 7 to 3. The Cumberland Colts clambered to within two points of the second place Senators by defeating Altoona, 7 to 6. Beckley walloped Hagerstown, 3 to 1, in the first legal Sunday game in the Maryland town. Less than 1,000 fans turned out for the game. The Hagerstown franchise, held by Joe Cambria, is expected to be transfered to Steubenville, O., shortly.

Fairmont nosed out Clarksburg, 2 to 1, and Charleroi won a close one over Huntington, 8 to 7.

CAMBRIA TO MOVE CLUB

MARTINSBURG, W. Va., June 15.—Joe Cambria, owner of the Hagerstown Club, of the Middle Atlantic League, made an overture today to local baseball leaders which likely will result in his club playing all of its week-day games during the second half of the season in this city. He talked to Lewis H. Thompson, who headed the Mountaineers when they were in the Blue Ridge League, and said he believed it would be beneficial to call his club the Hagerstown-Martinsburg entry, playing all games in Martinsburg except those on Sunday.

Retail Trade Gain Follows Low Prices, Ads; Leaders Again Free of Pessimism

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER

NEW YORK, June 15.—The better tone in the stock market thus far in June has been paralleled by no positive improvement in general business.

There has, however, been a betterment in sentiment. Or rather the collective financial mind has freed itself for a time again from the hysterical unreasoning, pessimistic delusions which reached a climax in May. The prevailing mood is to accept the harsh realities, but to try to distinguish between depression and disaster. Referring to the rise and fall of hopes on which stock prices swing, Col. Leonard P. Ayres, vice president and economic soothsayer of the Cleveland Trust Company, points out that business sentiment has already made a triple bottom. And he adds: "Three times ought to be enough even in a major depression."

Mr. Rukeyser

RESPONSE TO 'ADS'

In the immediate situation perhaps the most hopeful sign is the response made by retail customers to redoubled advertising efforts and reduced prices inaugurated by merchants. This movement of goods into distribution is reflected in the fact that car loadings are holding up to their seasonal level. Another brighter spot is the rise in coal output. Moreover, the crop outlook appears good.

Set-backs, however, are making for recession and are imparting irregularity to the longer term tendency toward economic recuperation. Automobile production has dropped in accordance with the normal seasonal trend. Steel output, registering the extent of the depression, has moved down to 40 per cent of capacity, reflecting the curtailment in the automobile industry. Residential building contracts appear to be easing off slightly.

BACK PROSPERITY LOAN

A decade after President Harding's committee on unemployment, of which Herbert C. Hoover was chairman, the country is still unprepared with plans for public works, which the committee recommended as an economic device for stabilizing conditions. William Randolph Hearst brought this proposal into the realm of practical affairs by proposing a huge federal loan to be spent as soon as practicable for public works, including development of highways and water power sites. Under intelligent administration, the completed plans for such projects ought to be waiting in a pigeon hole until the psychological time is reached in a business cycle. Incidentally, the best way of applying such an economically sound stimulant is now at hand.

VENEZUELA OIL FLOW CURBED

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Voluntary curtailment of production by oil companies operating in Venezuela is now evident in the monthly statistics for the year, the Commerce Department is advised from Maracaibo. In January output was 10,526,103 barrels and exports 10,943,674 barrels. In March output was decreased to 10,410,561 barrels and exports to 10,238,693 barrels. By the beginning of April the new policies of the oil companies had been put into operation and as a result only 9,315,211 barrels were produced and 8,864,086 barrels exported during the month.

Watch Retail Business For First Signs of Improvement

Retail business will be watched in the coming weeks because so many believe that the first real sign of betterment will come in this line due to the lower prices which now exist for so many products. Increased attention has been attracted to the retail business conditions by the announcement that Woolworth showed an increase of 7.7 per cent in its sales for the first week of the current month.

The view is spreading that with the steps for increased freight rates taking more concrete form the downward revisions of dividends by some of the railroads will be postponed. At least, interests who have been active in some of the rail shares have been discussing such a probability. It is argued that if the officials of the lines believe that there is a good chance of favorable action on a rate increase they will hesitate about cutting current dividends until the result of the high tariffs can be judged more accurately. This view has been responsible for some of the scale buying in rails on reactions recently.

Because oil traffic on the St. Louis-San Francisco Railway has been holding up well and crop prospects on the lines are considered favorable, interests in the railroad are said to consider the outlook improved. Results in May are said to have been much more satisfactory than those for the first four months of the year.

The severe decline in share values from the end of February to the beginning of the present month found reflection in a correspondingly sharp rise in average yield offered on 90 leading common stocks. At the February highs the average return offered was slightly under 5 per cent, whereas at the lows touched on June 2, last, it is shown that the yield on the same stocks had risen to approximately 6.40 per cent. The recovery since that time has, however, resulted in a slight decline in the indicated yield offered on such stocks to around a 6.05 per cent level. The current indicated yield contrasts with the prospective return of around 2.90 per cent offered on the same stocks at the September, 1929, highs when dividend rates incidentally were generally higher than at present.

Taking several of the recognized market leaders the basis for the foregoing shift becomes plainly apparent. Steel common for example at its 1929 high was receiving $8 including $1 extra and offered a yield of but 3 per cent whereas around current levels on the straight $7 basis the indicated return is about 7.8 per cent. General Motors at its 1929 peak of 91¾ paid $3.30 including extras to yield about 3.67 per cent while the regular $3 dividend with the current price of around 34½ makes for a 9 per cent return. New York Central then paying $8 yielded 3.1 per cent at its 1929 high of 261½ while the return at present prices with the dividend down to $6 is around 6.7 per cent. Baltimore and Ohio with a present $5 dividend now offers close to 9 per cent whereas on a $7 dividend basis at the 1929 high of 145 the indicated yield was only 4.8 per cent.

Will some corporations be able to support their present huge capitalizations over the next few years, or will it become necessary to cut down the size of the common stock structures? That is one of the questions now foremost in the minds of some market observers. Currently there is a total of more than 1,205,000,000 shares listed on the stock exchange, compared with 585,641,922 shares at the beginning of 1927. This huge increase in total shares has resulted principally from capital adjustments such as splitups, stock dividends, and a huge sale of securities on "rights" during 1929. One of the consequences, has, of course, been the dilution of per share earnings. Little surprise will be occasioned if over the next little while some corporations move to revise their common capital structures in an effort to provide for a better showing of earnings on a per share basis.

CORPORATE EARNINGS

Detroit Edison Company and subsidiary utility companies in 12 months ended May 31 earned consolidated net equivalent of $8.74 a share on 1,270,901 shares against $10.13 a share on 1,233,983 shares in the preceding 12 months.

Seiberling Rubber Company reports profit for first quarter ended April 30, before federal taxes, after all charges except depreciation. April profit was $89,137 after similar charges.

Federal Mining and Smelting Company reports for quarter ended April 30, net earnings of only $14,957 before depreciation, depletion, taxes and year-end write-ups, comparing with net of $112,810 in the preceding quarter and $400,145 a year previous.

Campbell, Wyant and Cannon Foundry Company reports net profit for period ended April 30 of $174,000 or 50 cents a share on 348,000 shares outstanding, at the end of last year. While no direct comparison is available, the first four months is understood to be substantially below that in the same period last year.

EVENING SUN-TELEGRAPH MARKETS

Stocks Fluctuate — Local Market Quiet

STOCKS ZIG-ZAG IN SLUGGISH TRADING

Substantial Upturn of Early Dealings Largely Lost; Bank Shares Strong

NEW YORK, June 15.—AP.—The financial markets began the new week quietly, but with the better feeling which became manifest last week decidedly in evidence.

The foreign markets reacted favorably to the sharp increases in the discount rates of the central banks of Germany, Austria and Hungary. Bankers felt that the flight of capital from Berlin had been largely checked, although there was still some pressure against the German mark.

Stocks in the New York market vacillated irresolutely in extremely sluggish trading. A substantial upturn in the first half hour was largely lost in what looked like a bear drive against Westinghouse. The baking shares were a conspicuous strong spot. Rails fluctuated uncertainly. U. S. Steel sold up a point then reacted.

The quarterly income tax collections and government financing had little effect on the money market, although the quarterly turnover of funds was estimated at close to $2,000,000,000. The Treasury overdraft in anticipation of the tax payments was believed to be smaller than usual, so the market was not flooded with money as it has sometimes been on tax settlement dates. Call loans were in fact slightly firmer. The official rate held at 1½ per cent, and there were no concessions from that rate in the outside market.

The rail shares appeared in the main to have discounted the increased freight rate and eastern consolidation petitions slated for filing with the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Bureau of Labor statistics reported a decrease of only nine-tenths of 1 per cent in payrolls for May, which is somewhat smaller than the average decrease for that month in the past several years.

AUSTRIAN BANK RATE RAISED

VIENNA, June 15.—The Austrian bank rate has been raised to 7½ per cent from 6 per cent.

LONDON, June 15.—The Hungarian bank rate has been raised to 7 per cent from 5½ per cent.

BERLIN, June 15.—Saturday's rally on the Berlin Boerse was continued today and prices scored advances of 1 to 3 points.

Wholesale Apparel Markets Active

NEW YORK, June 15.—The volume of buying in New York wholesale apparel markets went ahead last week under the impetus of heavy purchasing for promotional events. Popular price merchandise moved in quantity in both men's and women's wear fields. Dresses of sheer materials attracted current orders, as did sport frocks of washable silk, linen and shantung. Beach pajamas and related items were exceptionally active.

Gilbert Resigns Republic Position

YOUNGSTOWN, June 15.—Harry T. Gilbert, last of the executives who entered the Republic Steel Corporation organization from the old Republic Iron & Steel Company, and widely known throughout the country as a sales executive, has resigned as special assistant to Tom M. Girdler, president of the company.

British Rubber Stocks Decrease

LONDON, June 15.—Stocks of crude rubber here on June 13 totaled 83,856 tons, a decrease of 1,059 tons from the preceding week. Liverpool stocks totaled 54,812 tons, an increase of 554 tons over the week before.

Atchison Railway Handles Less Cars

CHICAGO, June 15.—For the week ended June 13 the Atchison Railway handled 28,032 revenue cars, compared with 27,408 in the preceding week and 34,105 in the like 1930 week.

Spectator

By Wall Street Spectator—

NEW YORK, June 15.

FOR SOME time a number of usually well-posted observers have suggested the probability of "acute shortages" developing in commodities.

At no time however have actual inventories statistics supported this contention for the main body of goods.

In pointing out this fact a brokerage house makes reference to the latest business survey of the Department of Commerce, which fails to disclose any change for the better in the quantity of important materials on hand as compared with a year ago.

THE ONLY FAVORABLE item in the government exhibit was a modest decline in stocks of manufactured goods in the past year.

After an extensive survey of the outlook in the household products and supplies industry, Standard Statistics concludes that for the large majority of concerns, earnings this year will be of extremely small proportions, with many deficits being recorded.

Only the producers of necessities such as soap, matches, ice and mechanical refrigerators are favorably situated to sustain or exceed their average earnings, as revealed over the past few years.

AS REGARDS the securities policy, the review holds that present representation in most of the common stocks in this industry is inadvisable.

Present holdings of City Ice and Fuel, Kelvinator and Servel should be retained temporarily, pending the possible stimulating effects of heavy seasonal sales during the summer.

Further Decline Expected In Steel Earnings

By GEORGE H. SNYDER

AS THE STEEL TRADE settles into its usual summer slump it is becoming increasingly apparent that income accounts for the third quarter will be even less encouraging than in the first two quarters of the year.

The continuous decline in mill operations, which has been under way since early in April, will be responsible for declines in earnings in the present quarter to levels even lower than those of the first quarter of the year.

Steel mills are working at the slowest pace since last December. The third quarter will be started with operations at about the present rate of 40 per cent of capacity. Steel men see little hope for an increase in demand during the next two months. This indicates that average operations in the third quarter will be lower than in the second quarter. Obviously this will reduce the earnings of companies working at a profit and will increase the losses of organizations showing a deficit.

Prices Still Low

STEEL PRICES REMAIN at the low levels reached in 1930. While price increases have been announced since that time, the new quotations have never actually been placed into effect on any tonnages of importance. The price of 1.65 cents a pound for bars, plates and shapes has not been established.

With demand in its present low state there are no very bright prospects for establishing higher quotations before the end of 1931. On the other hand low operations have so materially reduced the margin of profit in the steel industry that further reductions in prices are also considered improbable.

Economies Put Into Effect

DURING THE PAST THREE months nearly all the steel companies have been cutting down expenses. The wave of economy has reached into every department. Many of the independent organizations have cut the salaries of their office employes and have reduced the sizes of their forces.

The United States Steel Corporation has been one of the last of the organizations in the industry to make major reductions in its office payrolls. It is generally understood that the dismissal of office workers by Steel Corporation subsidiaries in all parts of the country will be responsible for a 10 per cent reduction in the payrolls for white collar workers.

The economies undertaken by the steel companies will partially compensate for the decline in business during the summer months.

National Covers Dividend

FOR THE SECOND QUARTER National Steel will again achieve the distinction of being the only large steel company to earn its common dividend requirements. In the last quarter of 1930 and the first quarter of 1931 it was the only company to cover its dividends. Earnings in April and May were sufficient to meet the payment of 50 cents a share for the second quarter.

National's business in the present month is not maintaining the pace of the two preceding months, but the company still is showing the most satisfactory results in the industry.

SHIP FREIGHT TRAFFIC OFF

WASHINGTON, June 15.—Freight traffic between the Pacific, Atlantic and Gulf Coasts by water in 1930 totaled 9,043,772 carcotons as compared with 10,551,195 the previous year. The figures were gathered by the Shipping Board. This commerce was carried on entirely in American flag vessels operating through the Panama Canal.

More than 72 per cent of the entire volume of traffic in 1930 originated on the Pacific Coast, a total of 6,502,267 tons. Westbound traffic totaled 2,541,505 tons. The largest single commodity movement, as in former years, was petroleum and its products, with logs and lumber second.

Cotton Activities Decline for May

NEW YORK, June 15.—The Association of Cotton Textile Merchants, reporting on May operations in standard cotton cloths, advises that new business booked during the month, covering a period of four weeks, amounted to 160,029,000 yards. Production during May amounted to 225,392,000 yards against output in April of 229,955,000 yards. Shipments in May were 205,603,000 yards, or 91.2 per cent of production. Stocks on hand at the end of May amounted to 301,943,000 yards, an increase of 7 per cent during the month. Unfilled orders were 248,544,000 yards, a decrease of 15½ per cent.

Missouri Pacific Request Denied

WASHINGTON, June 15.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has denied the petition of Missouri Pacific Railroad requesting further hearings for the presentation of additional testimony relating to original costs in the proceedings on the protest of the railroad to the tentative valuation of the railroad and its subsidiaries.

Tobacco Company Cuts Cigar Price

NEW YORK, June 15.—The General Cigar Company announced today that it has reduced the price of White Owl cigars from 6 to 5 cents, in harmony with the current principle of lower commodity prices. The savings of big scale production are being passed directly to the consumer, the company's statement said.

California Crude Oil Yield Drops

LOS ANGELES, June 15.—California crude oil output in the week ended May 30 averaged 521,500 barrels daily, a decrease of 4,800 barrels daily from the previous week, according to California Oil World.

Plan Drastic Cut in Zinc Production

LONDON, June 15.—International zinc cartel negotiations are to be resumed early in July and drastic curtailment of output is contemplated. Budapest advises that the steel cartel is to be prolonged to July 31.

Jennifer at Last Falls in Love With Gratton

(This famous story has been made into a talking picture by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer with Marion Davies in the leading role.)

CHAPTER XXXIII.

"Sacred Cow," a three-act comedy by Gratton Davies produced by the Internationalists, Inc., failed.

It was a galling failure to Gratton. "Sacred Cow" had been purposely written in the out-and-out key of high comedy. A burlesque in sheep's clothing, the bray to sound behind the straight-faced baa.

"Sacred Cow" as a social satire, wore its burlesque on its sleeve, and, failing, carried down with it three years of the work and high hope of its author.

Dispassionately, Jennifer desired success for Gratton. But passionately, greedily, almost enviously, she was jealous of it. He was somehow more closely hers while he only skirted achievement.

He needed her to come to when he was tired and discouraged almost beyond endurance, as they began in rehearsal to bray his play.

He sought her out over their favorite restaurant table in the bow-window of a small restaurant opposite the theater, or they journeyed down for a kitchenette-brewed luncheon in the quiet of his three small rooms over a bookstore in West Fourth street, or just walked around the milling block of the theater, or sometimes had tea out of beautiful little white jade Ch'ieni-Lung cups in Jennifer's small sitting-room, which had been redone in Chinese lacquer.

VISITS HIS ROOMS

His success might snatch it from her, and about Gratton—to Jennifer, at least—was something of the foreordained kind of success of a single-track mind. There was about him, even before he achieved the aroma of a man who cannot be deterred.

Gratton wanted one thing, really. To get said this brilliant foment. Jennifer knew that and found it frightening.

She told him so one evening, about a month after "Sacred Cow" had gone down to its by no means ignominious failure. They were at dinner in his rooms, a Japanese student, who came in by the hour, serving them at a table drawn up before the fire.

It was Jennifer who had first suggested these excursions to Gratton's rooms. Their booky, firelit shabbiness rested her. Fascinated her a little. They were intimate, lived-in, purposeful sort of rooms. They pretended no period.

When Jennifer had first suggested their going there, Gratton had acquiesced at once. As a matter of fact, she had only said it out of an indefinite desire to arouse in him some spark of the personal or protective.

In all her subsequent visits to his rooms—for meals, for afternoon cocktails, for brief interludes in between the exigencies of rehearsal—Gratton never so much as lingered at the business of helping her remove her wraps.

"Are you as self-centered as you seem, Gratton?" she asked him one evening, after the Japanese student had washed his last dish and departed, leaving them seated over coffee.

MONEY-CONSCIOUSNESS

"I reckon I are, Jennifer. I think an awful lot of me."

"You do nothing of the sort. You are interested in everything from better Chinese babies to the decadence of our decade; from the decline of philosophy to 'Kilts, why plaid'? I want you to be interested in me, Gratt. I may not be ideational, but I'm mighty nice, if I do say it as shouldn't."

"Hang it, Jennifer! I'm not even sure you're nice!"

"You mean that, Gratt?"

"I think I do, Jennifer."

"I'm not so sure, either, that I'm nice," she said, slowly.

"Wonder if we both mean the same thing by nice?"

"Don't qualify."

"Haven't the slightest intention of it. I don't know whether money has harmed you, Jennifer, but it hasn't made you a nicer person."

"Money-conscious!"

"One has to be, where you are concerned. Every bit of assurance you have is, consciously or unconsciously, founded on your recognition of the authority that goes with great wealth. Any stock dramatist could write you, Jennifer. You are fundamentally, I think, sound and fine, but . . ."

"Don't qualify."

"Damn it, Jennifer, I'm not! That's just it. You cannot imagine that I would dare not to qualify. That's part of your assurance. But let me go on. Fundamentally sound and fine, but cocksure with a sense of power. Spoiled, chiefly because you are spoilable material. Grown simply big and not big simply."

"Chaser after false gods. Wisecracker. More self-ful than selfish, but a little of both. Clever. Good mind and nothing to do with it. A giver, but considerably more of a taker. Vain, but not without reason. Good intentions. Feeble execution. A non-producer. A personality. A faker. A darling, Jennifer, that's you."

"Yes, Mr. God, but why, since you say that I am fundamentally f. and s., don't you make me over?"

"I haven't the right."

"What if I give it to you?"

"What if I can't?"

LONELINESS

"I see. You mean you haven't the right that goes with caring enough to do a big job like that?"

"If you will be personal, I wouldn't be it that cruelly, if I were you."

"I'm lonely as hell, Gratton."

"Are you, really, Jennifer, or is it just a dramatic state of mind that for the moment seems desirable to you?"

"Lord, you're cold!"

"What are you lonely for, Jennifer?"

"For the kind of thing you are not saying to me now."

"Well put, my lamb! May you never know more of the reaches of profound loneliness! I know a lonely man, Jennifer. Your father."

"Well," she cried, high and angrily; "well, well, what if he is? So is everybody connected with him. Shutouts from one another. And father, don't you forget it, has done his share of shutting out. All of us have, in our family, I'm afraid. My brother—between us—we—we—somehow managed to shut Avery out of life.

"Mother is a shut-out if ever there was one. God knows father is, I am. The rich Ranicks, if anybody should ask you, are a bunch of bankrupts. You talk about father being lonely, damn it, as if I didn't know! Well, just the same, you can't do anything about somebody who lives on Mars, can you? Neither can I do anything about father. He is simply where I can't get him, wherever that is. Damn it, always has been. I've tried.

"Father is a man who ordered a ham sandwich and a cup of coffee from life, and got stung when the waiter brought him caviar and diamond-back terrapin instead. I'm part of the banquet he found himself served up with, along with the terrapin and caviar. He can't digest me. Lonely—as if I don't know how lonely he is . . ."

"You don't really, Jennifer. You perceive it with that clever brain of yours. You don't know it, though, as one who is really lonely can know it in another."

"I suppose you mean as you can know it."

"Yes, Jennifer."

"Have we the newfangled complaint called sex-antagonism, Gratton?"

"You never do, when it concerns us. Are you open to a discussion about dialetic writing, or how about the use of pleonasm in Irish drama, Gratton?"

"You're not."

"How do you know? You've never touched me."

"That isn't worthy of you."

Tears sprang across his eyes.

"Just like me to blurt that out to you, of all people, whom I most want to impress. Don't think I'm in love with you because I said that."

"I don't."

"I want—oh, I don't know how to say what I want out of life, Gratton—but I want—passionately—"

"That's it, Jennifer. You're a wanter. You want and you won't pay."

LIKES HIM

"Do you know the nicest thing about me, Gratton?"

"I think you are the nicest thing about you, Jennifer."

"No, the nicest thing about me is the fact that I like you, Gratt."

"Don't say that. It hurts. First, because it is not true, and secondly, because I hate your arrogance; but your meekness would just about kill me. Humble, you would break my heart, Jennifer."

"Good Lord! don't say that, Jennifer," he said, and kicked back his chair and began to plow into a rubber pouch for pipe tobacco. "I'm jolly well what you said I am. A self-centered, would-be egomaniac, trying to get on by crawling away from that center known as self . . ."

"Your saying that I am fundamentally f. and s. means a lot to me, Gratt."

"You are, Jennifer, and some day something is going to sink the proper kind of shaft and mine the f. and s. out of you."

"Who and how?"

"I think I prefer to remain fundamentally unsafe and unsound."

"The devil you do!"

"Your way of rubbing in the fact that there is a serious possibility that I may be in love with you."

"Scarlet-fever symptoms may only mean measles."

"You mean because of what I was idiot enough to tell you about Berry?"

"No, but now that you remind me . . ."

"Be careful, Gratt . . . because if there is any sure test for me to determine whether or not I am in love with you, it is to compare what I am feeling now to what I did not feel then. The most counterfeit part of that entire situation was me. Not Berry."

"Out of the frying-pan and into the divine fire," he said and tilted her face with the tips of three fingers.

It was the first time he had ever touched her.

Reliving the scene to herself later, at home, in bed, under covers, it seemed to her that she had felt illuminated, like a switchboard

DAILY SHORT STORY

Man Is Ordered to Leave Town by Tough Trio

Molly's New Friend

(All names of characters in this story are fictitious.)

There was the strum-strum accompaniment of mandolin strings or ukulele strings, the boys couldn't tell quite which.

The boys stopped a moment and listened.

"I'm a son-of-a-gun! Molly's got company!" Dan said.

"Kick?" Dan growled. "How do you get that way, Joe? Molly ain't no dame to fall for saps that twiddle ukes and sing through their noses."

"I mean she's gettin' a big laugh—she probably asked him up so's we could kid him and have a big laugh."

"Yeah? We'll have a laugh when I take him by the ears like a rabbit and drop him in th' ash can," Pete said.

The other boys also were no slouches when it came to muscle or size or nerve.

Molly had very dark curly hair and keen blue eyes and a saucy nose. Irish brunette, she was, and as pretty as anything.

There were only three men at this time who were really in the running.

Dan, Joe and Pete.

They all lived in Water street, they had all known Molly since she was a kid and they were all pals.

If any chaps started hanging around Molly who were not the sort they should be, one of the trio would hold a brief argument with this unwanted one. If he knew the boys, a brief word was sufficient. If he were a stranger, a short-arm jolt loosened his teeth and killed his ambition to bask in Molly's presence.

Only occasionally did the "boys," as the Sawyers call them, discuss Molly.

"It's like this," Dan would say, "Molly likes th' three av us. Th' three av us likes Molly. We can't all have her, she can't have all av us. Some day she'll get a hunch which one av us it is. When Molly does that we'll shake hands with th' lucky stiff an' get drunk at th' weddin'—how about it?"

SEAL TO PLEDGE

Now and then one would call on Molly alone, which was all right. Now and then she'd go to a movie with Dan or Joe or Pete. Next time she would go with one of those she had not been with the previous time.

Pete would often sneak up a choice cut of meat to Ma Sawyer, Dan would fetch over a few bottles of beer that had never reached the "near" process. Joe would come with some cigars.

They all brought candy or something for Molly and she would be as jolly with one as the other.

Ma Sawyer got so that she was wondering which would be the lucky boy.

She liked all three. So did Pa Sawyer and also Molly.

So thick were the morning-glory vines over the Sawyer front porch that one could scarcely see through them. Gleams from the overhead light filtered through.

The singing stopped. They heard Molly laugh and say something.

A voice said, "Certainly, Miss Sawyer."

"One—two—three—four——"

The man was playing and singing again. He was enjoying himself when the three boys ascended the steps to be greeted by all of the Sawyers.

The boys eyed the intruder.

He was sitting in Ma Sawyer's low rocker, his head back, strumming a little ukulele that seemed like a toy, and singing.

Finally he saw the three and stopped.

"Boys," Molly said, cheerfully, "this is Mr. Arthur Savage. Arthur, meet Dan, Joe and Peter, my dear old college chums."

"Hello," said Joe and Dan together.

WARNING FROWN

They shook hands.

"Savage, eh?" asked Peter, "I like to meet 'em savage."

He grinned and shook hands, giving Mr. Arthur Savage's hand a squeeze that made him start a little.

"Music eh?" asked Dan.

They chatted for quite a while.

The boys learned that Mr. Arthur Savage had come on East from Toledo to visit an aunt.

"'Tis Nora Finley that is his aunt," Ma Sawyer explained. "You boys know her; she's often over here. She an me came over from Ireland on th' same ship as little girls."

"How does a real town seem to you?" Dan asked.

"I mean N'Yawk."

"I like it, too, and I'm thinkin' of staying," Mr. Savage told them.

"Antiques."

"What's thim?" Pete asked, in disgust.

"He means old-fashioned things—furniture and glass and plates and such," Molly hastened to explain.

After a while Mr. Savage excused himself. Molly went to the gate with him and came back after he had gone.

MOLLY SATISFIED

"Why, no, Peter, Arthur is real nice, he's so amusing and entertaining. I'm glad he's going to stay in the city."

On the way home the boys discussed it.

But a few weeks later the trio decided that Molly was not joking. She was getting too interested in this Mr. Arthur Savage. She was going out with him a great deal—to big shows and places, and Mr. Savage had a car.

"Thing to do is to tell him to run back to Toledo," Dan advised.

"Sure, so Molly'll forget him," Joe agreed.

"I'll speak to him," Pete offered.

A few nights later he laid for Mr. Arthur Savage.

"Listen, Mr. Savage," Pete said, "you'll feel better back in your home town of Toledo—so beat it back by th' end av this week."

"Don't be foolish, Pete," Arthur said.

"We mean it."

"Oh, the three of you, eh, like that? You'll jump me and beat me up and maybe call in your friend the cop off the beat to help."

"Lissen, you silly ape," Pete growled, "if you're not gone come Saturday we'll take turns beatin' you up, one by one, every night after Saturday ye stay in town.

"Go get your friends and start it now," Arthur said, "and don't be so free calling people apes, you big baboon!"

"Come with me."

TRIO BADLY BEATEN

Dan stepped up first and made a pass. He got a sock that floored him. Peter, ashamed of Dan, rushed in and was met by a left-right-left that sent him to sleep. Joe was dazed but game. He said, "Put 'em up—fight accordin' to rules."

Mr. Arthur shook hands, put 'em up and hammered Joe off his feet in less than three seconds.

"What sort av business is it you're in, Mr. Savage?" Dan asked, groggily.

"Antiques—run a shop. Nights I teach boxing at the business men's gym. I still hold the amateur middleweight championship, boys—and no offense now, be friends with me. Molly expects you at our wedding, you know—how about it?"

"Anny way, thank God, you're wan av us, for it's all right for wan Irishman to lick another," Peter said.

Seek Restitution, Too

Prosecution of Those Who Have Squandered the Taxpayers' Money Is Not Sufficient.

The grand jury has begun an investigation of "irregularities" in the administration of the Department of Supplies.

The investigation had its origin in the complaint of John D. Houston, wholesale grocer, that the department was awarding contracts to high bidders.

City Council refused to conduct a public investigation, such as Mr. Houston and many others demanded. Mayor Kline yielded partly to the pressure of public opinion, however, and conducted a private inquiry, with the result that he dismissed Bertram L. Succop as director of the department on the ground there were "visible irregularities" in his administration.

Public opinion was still not satisfied. Accordingly a thorough audit of the department's accounts was conducted by two sets of accountants, one employed by the city and the other by a citizens' committee.

The accountants reported that many thousands of dollars of the taxpayers' money had been squandered.

District Attorney Park took the reports of the accountants to a Canadian resort where, free from interruption, he gave them careful study. On his return Saturday he remarked there was ample justification for laying the matter before the grand jury.

Mr. Houston and those who upheld him have been vindicated at every point.

But prosecution will not be sufficient.

An effort should be made to secure restitution of the money of which the citizens of Pittsburgh have been plundered. If there is evidence of conspiracy on the part of high bidders to secure contracts, civil suits should be filed to compel the return of the money that they unlawfully obtained from the city.

The public officials who were responsible for the extravagance must also be called upon to make restitution.

Bushy Run Battlefield

The State Is Helping to Preserve the Memory of an Event That Was of Great Importance.

Of considerable interest to students of local history is the news that the state has made extensive improvements at the Bushy Run Battlefield Park. The park is a 130-acre tract in Westmoreland County, 27 miles east of Pittsburgh, and commemorates the victory that Col. Bouquet, commanding a force of Highlanders and Colonials, gained over an Indian army three times as large on August 5 and 6, 1763.

The commonwealth, which acquired the site several years ago, has completed the erection of five bronze tablets describing the battle. Col. Bouquet's victory was of considerable importance to Pittsburgh, for it led to the crushing of Pontiac's conspiracy and to the relief of Fort Pitt. The westward march of civilization was expedited by the defeat of the Indians.

The story of those early days in Western Pennsylvania is worth knowing, and a visit to the Bushy Run Battlefield Park will make it more vivid.

The Department of Forests and Waters has laid out a picnic ground in the woods on the site and dug a well. The place has been made attractive with flowers, which reinforce its natural beauty.

Visit this new state park. It is two miles north of Jeannette, near State Highway Route No. 993, and midway between the Lincoln and William Penn highways.

Tariff and Foreign Trade

When the newly-elected Congress convenes next December, it cannot meet the challenge of unemployment without revising the Hawley-Smoot tariff act of 1930.

In operation this iniquitous law is proving itself to be the enemy instead of the protector of American labor, American industry and American commerce.

Canada's recent action in increasing its tariff duties was undoubtedly a measure of retaliation against the United States for the excessive rates in the Hawley-Smoot law.

And this retaliation by Canada is forcing American industry to build branch factories in Canada that will employ foreign labor. More and more these foreign branches will supply the export trade which has hitherto been supplied by home factories employing American labor.

Canada's retaliation will probably prove to be the forerunner of retaliation by many other foreign nations.

With the inevitable result that American industry will be forced to build more branch factories abroad to supply their export trade.

Meantime, the home factories of these American industries are working part-time and adding to the ranks of unemployed Americans.

In revising our present tariff law the new Congress must face the fact that tariff protection alone is not enough to maintain the American standard of living, safeguard American industry and promote American commerce.

As a corollary to the American policy of tariff protection to encourage home industries, the new Congress must support tariff reciprocity to develop foreign markets for American products.

In order to get foreign trade this country must attract it by reciprocal arrangements with other countries.

The retaliation which the prohibitive schedules of the Hawley-Smoot tariff act are provoking shows the folly of expecting that the United States can do all the selling to foreign countries and compel them to do all the buying.

Tariff revision may well be undertaken by the new Congress because its membership will be fairly evenly divided between the two great political parties.

Under progressive leadership it ought to be possible to reinforce a reasonable system of tariff protection with a modern system of tariff reciprocity.

Only by thus modernizing our tariff system can the new Congress undo the damage already done by the exorbitant schedules which are provoking retaliation by Canada and other foreign countries and losing us customers the world around.

Sunday Was Made for Man

AN ANTI-SUNDAY MOVIE PETITION.

This picture shows a big truck backing up to the office of the Prime Minister in London, bringing 1,499,683 signed protests against the opening of Sunday "cinemas."

"Cinema" is the quaint British word for our "movie."

The Lord's Day Observance Society decided that it did not want to go to movies on Sunday. And like other concerns of the same type—we have some in the United States—they decided that others must not be ALLOWED to do what its membership does not WANT to do.

Very sensibly the British House of Commons, laying politics and parties aside, voted by a 48 majority to let those go, that have to go, to Sunday "cinemas" while permitting those that wanted to stay at home to STAY AT HOME.

And moving pictures of the right kind help to develop the mind. They give information, stimulate imagination, drive away the blues.

There are bad moving pictures, but common sense, public decency and the police should and will prevent their showing on Sunday or any other day.

Presently, thanks to a beginning made and continued by Mr. Eastman, of Rochester, N. Y., and thanks to excellent work done by Courtland Smith in association with William Fox, educational moving pictures will be developed to the highest point of usefulness and of public interest.

Those that like "thrillers" may smile. But the day will come when educational pictures will be more profitable, the theater showing them more crowded than any picture of wild west adventure, or any picture of a gentleman trying to steal another gentleman's wife and getting shot for his trouble.

If Mr. Durant's book on philosophy could sell 500,000 copies, outselling as it did all popular fiction, BECAUSE HUMAN BEINGS ARE INTELLIGENT, educational pictures can do as well.

In the United States, by the way, we might borrow an idea from the British and say, "You need not, if you don't want to, but you must not keep others from doing what you don't want to do."

We have a minority which says, "I don't want to drink a glass of beer," and then by pressure on timid politicians makes it impossible for those that want a glass of beer to have it, incidentally forcing the more deadly and dangerous bootleg whisky on sons and daughters of others that never dreamt of touching whisky before prohibition came in.

Stay away from the "cinema" on Sunday if you want to. Stay away from the foaming, deadly glass of light beer, or the stimulating glass of light wine if you want to.

Remember what the benevolent old French bishop said to the enthusiastic young priest who planned "to keep my parishioners from dancing, singing and drinking wine on Sunday."

The wise bishop said to him, "You set the good example. You refrain from dancing, singing and drinking wine. But let your poor parishioners enjoy themselves and forget their misery."

A glass of light beer now might help a good many workmen to forget their misery, that is to say, if they had five cents to buy it.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Women—and Enchantment

Every woman goes through life looking for enchantment.

* * *

That is what makes her do all the foolish things and all the sublime things, which frighten, annoy or amaze men, and keep them wondering about her.

* * *

To a man, life, love and women are just facts. To a woman, life is a play, love the third act, and the leading man of the moment is the "hero."

That is why man never can understand woman.

* * *

When a woman feels like staging a romantic scene, she doesn't wait for Prince Charming to arrive; she picks out the nearest personable man and drapes her illusion on him, dramatizes him and splashes her sentiment all over him. Many a perfectly unsuspecting man has been astonished to be rushed off his feet, propped up on a pedestal, handed a halo, and "emoted" over.

* * *

But, if a woman were not gifted with beautiful illusions, she could never visualize the blundering, incoherent creature in tweeds and a stiff collar, who caresses her with one hand while he runs his car with the other, as the romantic Adonis of her dreams.

* * *

It's her search for enchantment, her imagination and her illusions that sustain a woman all through this sordid, commonplace life, and make it bearable for her.

* * *

She parts with her illusions as reluctantly as she does with her teeth, one by one, resorting to all sorts of devices to retain each to the last moment.

* * *

The most tragic moment in her life is that in which she takes off her rose-colored glasses and looks at life and her lover through the painful clarity of her bi-focals.

A man, on the other hand, is much more comfortable when he has gotten rid of his illusions. When he finds out that it is time to give them up, he philosophically "has 'em ALL OUT"—and lets it go at that!

* * *

But many a woman spends half her Indian Summer HUNTING for her vanished illusions, and trying to stage a beautiful "last act" for the drama of Youth, before the curtain goes down.

* * *

For a woman knows that she is old, indeed, when her last illusion has been burned out and her last love affair has faded out. If she has never found her Isle of Enchantment by then she feels that she has never really LIVED!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, June 15.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Up and came a post card from Bob Brinkerhoff in far-off Japan, a night letter from Mrs. Leslie Carter in Los Angeles, gay notes from Townsend Netcher in Santa Monica and Zaz Hitchcock and also an epistle from a long ago vaudeville favorite, Mae Melville.

John Golden to breakfast and we talked of the theater, of ships and sealing wax and things. Nor do I know another producer so high minded in presentation of plays. So in a book of verse read, "the skyscrapers shiver by the edge of the river" and could not keep it out of my poor head all day.

In the evening to a cafe called The Manison to dine, then to the theater and on to Leon Gordon's studio where came a merry crowd. Home late and outside my chambers a taxi man waited with a Siamese cat which he found and was erroneously told belonged to me.

Three forlorn street musicians wander through the mocking pinnacles of the Forties playing a piccolo, cornet and violin. They carry a banner reading: "Five years ago we sat in movie orchestra pits. Then came the talkies."

And the most alluring literary address I know is that of Frederic Arnold Kummer—No. 2 St. Martin's Lane, Guilford, Baltimore.

Few New York newspapers, despite legends, turned out so many crack newspapermen as the old Morning Telegraph. In other days almost every newcomer was assured a tryout. If he made the grade, the Morning Telegraph was generous in releasing him to a bigger post. There was little discipline or blunder-buss about its editorial room and it attracted gallant writers. Some of its grammatical currency was minted at Oxford and some from the jargon of exercise boys at the track. Its home, then, as now, is an abandoned car barn a few steps from Broadway's heart. Among graduates are Alfred Henry Lewis, Bat Masterson, Leo Marsh, Bide Dudley, Rennold Wolf, Baird Leonard, Helen Green Van Campen and Heywood Broun.

* * *

The Morning Telegraph gave birth to what is now the Broadway column. On its first page sparked a double columned ember of sophistications penned by "Beau Broadway"—a pseudonym used by many different writers on the staff. It was supposed to reflect top flight gossip of its day.

* * *

I recall visiting the Telegraph shortly after landing in town. One walked up rickety stairs to an abandoned hay-mow interior flooded with the sickly green of mercurial lights. Battered desks were dotted with huge paste-pots, copy spikes and enormous shears. Everything seemed topsy turvey. I tried to converse with a gentleman in a big black bow tie who was city editor. Finally I was forced to say I could not hear him. He called a copy boy and with magnificent sarcasm shouted: "Youth, yowl up the belfry for the carilloneur to play something soothing, his din annoys this visitor." It had that sort of a staff in those days.

* * *

Yet I think the stiffest clout of all was received in a Park Row anteroom whither I had gone in quest of a job. I sent in an ultra smart calling card, an extravagant gesture of a brief prosperity. It came back scrawled across the back: "With a card like this you should study to be a Viscount." I still think it the cheap retort of a man who never deserved an editorship—and he didn't remain so long.

* * *

And that recalls a haughty lady at a recent dinner—very distant, quite bored. A gentleman who had limbered upon several cocktails finally called across the table: "Come on, Mona Lisa, step out of the canvas!"

A bright day suddenly sours with an unsolicited letter from an astrologer. It reads: "Your birth date reveals you have reached life's dangerous mid-channel. Beware the swift currents!" In other words: "Watch yourself, you old fool."

PICCARD'S ADVENTURE

By Archibald Henderson

For long scientists have been greatly interested in the stratosphere, which may be described in the words of Shakespeare's Hamlet as "this most excellent canopy, the air." The stratosphere is a layer or zone of the upper air arctic cold in temperature. Here, in the daytime, the stars may be seen to shine in the deep blue, almost purple sky. The height of the stratosphere above the earth ranges from five to six miles above the polar regions and from nine to 10 miles above the tropics. There is very little air movement in the stratosphere; but in the region below it gales blow at a rate as high as 100 miles per hour. The average temperature of the stratosphere is about 80 degrees below zero.

One of the reasons why the recent flight of Prof. Piccard has created so much interest among scientists, entirely aside from the hazards of the venture, is the hope for transatlantic flight through the stratosphere in hermetically sealed airplanes. It is well known that, for some time, Prof. Junkers has had under construction in his plant at Dessau, Germany, an airplane designed for penetrating, and traveling in, the stratosphere.

It is doubtful, as yet, whether Prof. Piccard's scientific data will add much to what is already known of the stratosphere. But now that man has penetrated the stratosphere, it appears to be demonstrated that it is perfectly possible for human beings to live inside sealed airships at far greater heights than planes have yet attained.

The primary object of Prof. Piccard's daring balloon trip, according to the scientist himself, was to endeavor to determine by observational measurements with scientific instruments whether the mysterious cosmic rays, of which so little is as yet known, are 10 times as powerful there as at the earth's surface. It seems doubtful whether Prof. Piccard succeeded in this, his major objective. There seems no reason to doubt that his pioneer trip, in which the world's altitude record for a human being was broken, will give great impetus to the study of the stratosphere, and lead to further daring flights in the near future.

The maximum height to which the balloon containing Prof. Auguste Piccard and his scientific assistant, Charles Kipfer, reached was about 52,000 feet, which is almost 10 miles — easily a world record. It was necessary to do away with the net for supporting the heavy gondola or car attached to the balloon. The gondola as constructed was spherical in shape, 210 centimeters in diameter, and constructed of an alloy of aluminum and tin. The laboratory had to be set up in an airtight chamber; and fortunately two filters were taken along, for keeping the air sweet. An accident to one of the filters was sustained in the first swift upward rush; and the inability, which developed later, to operate the valve of the balloon, compelled the aeronauts to remain in the air about twice as long as they expected. When the balloon settled down on the Gurgl glacier in the Austrian Tyrol at a height of some 6,300 feet above sea level, they had been in the air 18 hours and there was just enough oxygen left to last one hour longer.

Text for Today Come unto me, all ye that labour and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest. Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart: and ye shall find rest unto your souls. For my yoke is easy, and my burden is light.—Matthew, xi:28, 30.

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

In your conversations what do you give of value to those to whom you talk?

In association you choose those who engage in the same line of small, silly chatter, that you enjoy.

And so you become very uninteresting to those of any other class.

But you say you are not in school—enough of that.

To live a worthwhile life you must study as much after school days are over as you did when you were younger.

If you have not studied some you lose facts and so each year you know less.

Unless you think about what you have studied and make some use of the facts learned you cannot recall them at your bidding.
